Daughter Like Father
Franklin and Johnson
Russia Asks $400,000,000
Gang Efficiency

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

MISS ANNE MORROW, to be Mrs. Lindbergh, is revealed by eager reporters as an unusually intelligent, able young woman. The world already knows of her father's ability. And Galton's work on heredity proves that the ability of fathers is inherited by their daughters.

Miss Morrow and her mother are graduates of Smith College, the daughter, writing excellent verse and prose, proves her possession of a brilliant mind, and what is most important to the future generation, active imagination. Actual accomplishment in the father, and imagination in the mother, is the desirable combination. And in the engagement of Colonel Lindbergh and Miss Morrow you have this combination clear enough to delight the most enthusiastic eugenist.

The public will welcome this engagement for many reasons, among others, the fact that undoubtedly it will keep young Lindbergh on the ground at least PART of the time.

In London, a letter written by Benjamin Franklin, sent from Philadelphia to his sister in Boston, sold for $5750.

A letter written by Samuel Johnson, sent to his wife, sold on the same day for $5750.

Franklin and Johnson are as far apart as kerosene lamps and electric light. Johnson believed in things as they were, everything old and respectable. Franklin, sending up his kite to capture electricity, believed in everything new.

Both were useful, Johnson teaching men to think, Franklin teaching them to act.

Competition in the bootleg liquor trade diminished on the North Side of Chicago yesterday.

Five members of one gang, getting the drop on seven competitors, lined them up against a wall and shot them down with machine gun fire, killing every one.

The "bump-off" squad left huddled in a heap seven victims, every one a man well known for his ability at "gun play."

This happened in Chicago's 43d ward, lacking an alderman, sent two days ago to spend two years in Fort Leavenworth prison for leadership in "alcohol cooking" and bootlegging.

Two of the wholesale murderers were disguised as policemen.

This incident in crime life will interest Europe, studying our prohibition reform wave.

The Russian government would like to borrow $400,000,000 in the United States, to be spent buying machinery for farms and for road making.

Thomas E. Campbell, of Montana, one of the greatest, most successful wholesale farmers in the world, returns from Russia saying, he thinks the Russians would pay. And what is more important, he declares that Russia seems to have gone further than any of us in thinking out the application of industrial methods to the business of farming.

Henry Ford apparently believes Russia will pay, or perhaps he collects his money in advance. At all events he shipped 3,500 of his tractors to Russia on one order and will ship many more from his tractor plant in Ireland.

Germany, determined to excel in the air, is demolishing the gigantic Zeppelin plant at Friedrichshafen, to arrange construction of a super air boat.

This ship, to be ready in 1931, is intended "to establish trans-Atlantic air service as reliable as a railroad train." If the Germans do not succeed this time, they will keep on until they do succeed.

The Senate votes to sell, for $16,000,000, to Paul W. Chapman, 11 vessels belonging to the United States shipping board. One of those, the Leviathan, could not be built for $16,000,000 with several millions added.

Uncle Sam through his government officially confesses his inability to run steamships.

Intelligent Mussolini changed the saying about writing the songs of a nation and letting anybody else make the law. To him the important thing is to write the captions on films. That he does in connection with the signing of the Vatican treaty. Films were submitted to the Italian ruler, who wrote what was to be said at the showing.

It is expected, in Rome, that the Pope will leave the Vatican in June to make a formal call on the Italian king at the Quirinal palace. That will terminate the Pope's imprisonment within the Vatican limits that has lasted nearly sixty years.

Boston-bound from Pacific coast ports via Providence, the big freighter Pacific, owned by the Argonaut Steamship Company of New York, with a general cargo, piled up today on Handkerchief Shoals, at the entrance of Nantucket Sound, off Chatham.

Business as Usual Again as Blast Danger Passes

Business was resumed as usual in the Summer st.-Chauncy st. downtown area of Boston today following assurances from the police and fire departments and from the Edison Electric Illuminating Co. that all danger of further manhole explosions had passed. All restrictions were removed from the area and stores were again crowded.

SCRAP EL STRUCTURE, CHARLESTOWN DEMAND

An insistent demand for the scrapping of the Elevated structure in Charlestown was voiced at a continued hearing today before the legislative committee on metropolitan affairs.

The committee had expected to hear the views of Mayor Nichols on the bill to extend public control of the road and to make $55,000,000 rapid transit extensions, but he cannot appear until Monday.

Representative Luke D. Mullen of Charlestown, sponsor for the bill to have the El structures purchased by the city with the ultimate view of tearing them all down, was the first speaker.

He explained that the structures would be leased to the El, after the purchase by the city, and a sinking fund set up to retire the purchase bond issue. In place of the structure, the city would extend the tunnel from Haymarket sq. to Sulivan sq.

Property in Charlestown, he said, had depreciated along the entire section where the El structure

DAMAGE BY BLASTS IS REPAIRED

Less than 24 hours after the manhole explosions that injured 32 persons and shattered many windows near Summer and Chauncy sts., Edison Electric Co. and city workers today had restored order in the district.

Most of the broken windows had been replaced and the crowds of shoppers who moved through the district would have been unaware of any explosions had they not read of them.

The last explosion was early today, when three men were injured, to bring the total to 32.

This was followed by start of a complete inspection of all Edison Co. cables and conduits in Greater Boston.

Lieut. Johnson Off for Altitude Record

Wright Field, O., Feb. 15 (AP)—In a solo attempt to attain an altitude never before reached by man, Lieut. Harry Johnson, Selfridge Field pilot, took off at 11:27 today from Fairfield air intermediate depot, Wright Field, in Wright Field's specially-equipped altitude plane.

8TH GIRL'S CLOTHING SLASHED ON 'L' TRAIN

The eighth slasher victim was revealed today when Miss Mary Morse of Vine st., Everett, reported to the police of that city that her dress was slashed while she was riding on a Cambridge tunnel train between Park st. and Washington st. in Boston.

Boston police were notified and it was learned that the slashing took place last Tuesday morning.

Miss Morse said that she discovered her dress was cut after she left the train.

The young woman believed the slasher was a man who stood near her and whom she described as being about 30 years old, 5 feet 5 inchest tall, 150 pounds in weight, dark complexion, black hair, thick lips, brown eyes, medium build, wearing a tan overcoat and light tan soft hat.

LINDY HOPS NORTH ON WAY TO WASHINGTON

Miami, Fla., Feb. 15 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh hopped off for Washington, D. C., this morning.

On his way north from Miami where he has spent a few days since inaugurating the Pan American air service, the flying colonel stopped at Sapelo Island, Ga., to visit Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Coffin, who recently entertained President Coolidge.

The colonel planned to spend the afternoon with the Coffins. A pheasant hunt on the estate was arranged for his entertainment while on the island. The colonel said he might decide to remain on the island over night.

BLAST WRECKS HOUSE, 8 HURT IN WORCESTER

Worcester, Feb. 15 (AP)—Two firemen were injured and four other firemen and two patrolmen were knocked down when the second of two successive explosions wrecked a three-story wooden dwelling at 222 Shrewsbury st. today.

An odor of burnt powder caused police to conclude that bombs or dynamite had been set off.

None of the persons who live in the house was present when either blast occurred. A fire alarm was sounded after the first explosion, and it was while firemen and the two policemen were searching for possible victims that the second blast occurred.

The patrolmen were knocked down a flight of stairs and out the door, while the six firemen were thrown to the floor by the second explosion, which shattered all windows in the house, smashed the furniture into fragments, knocked out the back of the

'MISSING' DARTMOUTH STUDENTS IN DETROIT

Detroit, Feb. 15 (AP)—Wilbur H. Ferry, Dartmouth College student, who last night was reported in a Hanover (N. H.) dispatch as en route to South America with William H. Cox of West Haven, Ct. a college mate, will return to Hanover today to resume his studies, he told his father, Hugh J. Ferry of Grosse Pointe, Mich., in a telephone conversation.

Ferry said his son was at the Cox home in West Haven when he talked with him. He did not say whether the boy had explained his departure from Hanover.

DRY CHIEF SAYS COPS IN MASSACRE OF THUGS WILL BE KNOWN TODAY

Chicago, Feb. 15 (AP)—Maj. Fred D. Silloway, assistant prohibition administrator, today advanced the theory that police officers themselves killed the seven gangsters shot to death in a North Side gang stronghold yesterday.

He declared he believed the names of the actual slayers would be known before night.

Commissioner of Police Russell, who hurried to the scene of the slaying yesterday, was quoted as saying: "This will be the end of gang war in Chicago. The police will fight it out to the death with the gunmen."

He has ascribed most of the gang killings to the prohibition laws.

More Leaders Express Temperance Opinions

MORE leaders of opinion in Boston and Massachusetts have added their approval to the $25,000 Temperance Contest now being conducted by the Boston Evening American and other Hearst newspapers. Among the views expressed on the subject are:

DR. HENRY M. POLLOCK, Superintendent Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital:

As a former superintendent of a state hospital for the insane and a former superintendent of a state farm for inebriates I saw many of the results of intemperance. I became aware that intemperance was frequently an exciting cause of mental disease.

I knew that many a promising career had been ruined and that the downfall of many men and not a few women was due to drink. I learned that once the habit of intemperance was formed it was exceedingly difficult and often quite impossible to overcome.

As superintendent of a large general hospital I was and am in thorough agreement with the almost unanimous opinion of its staff that as a medicine alcohol had but a very limited field of usefulness.

It was not strange that I was one of those that gave prohibition a cordial welcome and was willing to waive all abridgement of personal rights and personal liberty if through prohibition these evils could in part be controlled.

Like many others I have been disappointed with the results accomplished. Undoubtedly good has been done, chiefly, I believe, in the household of the man who previously drank to excess. No doubt there are many, many families who are much happier and far better provided for than in

ARE RESCUED FROM DEATH IN TUNNEL OF FLAME

It was followed also by the opening of an investigation by State Fire Marshal George C. Neal, who criticized the Edison company and who said he would hold a hearing later.

"We can't do anything with these people (The Edison Co.)," Marsal Neal said. "They have been blowing up manholes ever since they came to the city. This one is similar to the one that occurred at Massachusetts ave. and Boylston st. last summer.

"I will call for samples of the cable and will hold a hearing very shortly. They say that these explosions are caused by sewerage gas. That is not so, in my opinion."

Injury of the three Edison employes in the newest explosion caused a renewal of excitement in the area, filled with policemen, firemen, Edison and city workers, a throng of onlookers and fire and repair trucks.

The appearance of hurrying fire apparatus in the explosion area today caused a new scare in the district and thousands followed the apparatus to Bedford st. only to learn that a still alarm had been sounded for a small fire in the kitchen of a spa.

Firemen speedily extinguished the blaze with insignificant loss.

Workers Injured While Repairing Blast Damage

The new explosion brought the total of blasts to four and came at a time when Michelangelo Marganillo, 40, of George st., Roxbury, was leaning over the open manhole in Chauncy st., feeding into it new cable.

Alfred Thomas of Belden st., Dorchester, and an unidentified third Edison worker were in the manhole receiving the cable.

Suddenly there came a surge of heat and then a blast of smoke and flame blew up out of the hole, bathing the face of Marganillo and burning the hands of the other two men.

For several hundred feet down the street came rescuers running, but first to reach the injured men were Police Sergt. Gilman and Patrolmen Edward Gardiner and John F. Manning, who were on duty in an automobile encircling the explosion area.

Marganillo was taken into the Edison power house farther down Chauncey st., and then Sergt. Gilman, with other police and Edison employes, rescued Thomas and the other man from the hole.

They were treated only at the power house, while Marganillo, after first aid was administered, was taken to Haymarket Relief Station, where his burns were said to be serious.

Police tightened their guard about the district and kept the crowd out of the danger zone after the heroic rescues from the manhole.

At the hospital it was said that of the 29 persons whose names had been listed as injured prior to the arrival of Marganillo, all had gone home except two.

Have to Suspend Work as Conduit Cables Heat Up

With the latest blast over, augmented squads of repairmen set to work again to restore burned cables. They worked in the manholes and conduits today until the heavy load of electricity necessary in the conduct of daytime business made the cables so warm that further work was inefficient, as well as dangerous and uncomfortable. Then the conduit workers were taken off until late today when the load will have reduced and the cables cooled.

Meanwhile, in various shops in the vicinity, workmen were busy replacing shattered show windows with new plate glass.

The sidewalks in front of stores where windows still held hanging fragments of glass were roped off to prevent pedestrians from injury.

One lunch room succeeded in having three large plate glass windows replaced hours before dawn.

Thousands of persons halted at the edge of the explosion area on their way to work today, but it was observed that an average of three out of four pedestrians when walking near Chauncy and Summer sts., gave manhole covers a wide berth and walked fa raround them.

According to an official of the Edison Co., 25 small covers and four large manhole covers were blown off in the first three explosions that came at the peak of the home-going rush hour.

A number of the covers were hurled up 50 to 100 feet in the air.

The third blast was the most violent, a section of conduit being blown out for a distance along Summer st., and many huge windows being shattered.

Business was resumed in all the adjoining stores today with little confusion attending because of the explosions.

Fire Chief Sennott stated that no danger to any shopper existed, because he and his men had made thorough inspections of buildings in the vicinity and had found no leaking gas and no hazard of fire or collapse growing out of the blasts.

Good Surface Coal Is Found in Alaska

Washington, Feb. 15—Good quality coal, lying almost on the surface of the ground in virtually unlimited quantities, has been discovered and reported to the Interior Department by Ben F. Evans of Wainwright, Alaska.

Discovery of the coal in Wainwright, which is the northermost inhabitated point of the continent, has solved the problem of providing fuel for the Eskimo villagers.

The outcropping of this coal, the department reported, occurs 10 miles down the coast from the village of Wainwright and promises soon to become an important source of fuel for that long stretch of Alaska which borders on the Arctic ocean.

U.S. COMPANY IN BRITISH DEAL

New York, Feb. 15 (AP)—Control of seven of the principal British power companies with assets of $150,000,000 has been acquired by the Utilities Power and Light Corporation, an American company.

Harley L. Clarke, president of the Utilities Power and Light, completed negotiations by transatlantic telephone and then announced that his company had taken over the entire common stock of the Greater London and Counties Trust, Ltd., which controls the entire capital stock of the seven power companies and their subsidiaries.

Clarke said this is the first time an American company has taken over British public utilities serving localities in the British Isles and was "probably the most significant tie-up of American and British capital since the war."

The Earl of Birkenhead, formerly Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain and secretary for India, with whom Mr. Clarke talked on the transatlantic telephone, has been named chairman of the board of the Greater London and Counties Trust.

The power companies involved in the transaction serve three large areas adjoining London without competition, and extending east, west, north and south serve exclusively 95 cities and towns in England and Scotland.

Acquisition of the British properties will give the Utilities Power and Light Corporation gross earnings of $43,000,000 and make it a $400,000,000 corporation from the standpoint of assets.

Cost of Small Bills to Exceed Estimate

Washington, Feb. 15—The new small money is going to cost more than the Treasury Department at first thought, President Coolidge asked Congress to provide $309,500 for the Treasury Department, during the present fiscal year, to be used in the purchase of distinctive paper for the new bills, for compensation to employes of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and for miscellaneous expenses in connection with producing the smaller currency.

Music Center? Boston? Nay! It's Laporte, Ind.

A survey of the support given good music made recently by George Engles, concert manager, shows that 9 per cent of Laporte's population of 15,158 attend concerts regularly—the highest percentage in the country. Less than 4 per cent of the population of the United States are regular patrons of concerts.

New York, O., stands second to Laporte with a percentage of six. Other small communities where music is supported by box office contributions are Portsmouth, O., Kenosha, Wis., and Aurora, Ill.

"Metropolitan centers like New York and Chicago pull the national average down," Eagles said. "Less than 1 per cent of the population attend concerts.

"Of the large cities Boston is perhaps the most genuinely musical. It is one of the few cities which places musicianship above box office appeal."

Philadelphia, he said, supported its own orchestra, but paid little attention to outside musical events.

$400,000 Loss as Fire Sweeps Block

Tupelo, Miss., Feb. 15—Loss of approximately $400,000 was caused when flames swept an entire block in the business section.

LAY GANG KILLINGS TO COPS

Police Commissioner Russell and Deputy Commissioner John Stege, in charge of the detective bureau, had left their offices to go to the inquest for the seven slain men at the time Silloway made his announcement.

Chief Russell said there were so many violators of the dry law that the resulting flow of money for illicit liquor set the gangsters crazy for tainted money, even to the extent of slaying each other to garner the lucre.

POLICE ASTOUNDED

Capt. Ames Gleason, Stege's assistant, however, said it was ridiculous to suppose police were involved in the murders. A visored cap was picked up in the garage, he said, but it was that of a doorman.

Policemen, he said, would never have marched men out of the garage with their hands over their heads, unarmed, as witnesses described the exit of yesterday.

"Those men were gangsters, masquerading as officors," he declared emphatically. "The only thing Frank Gusenberg, who died in the hospital, would say that two of the men were wearing uniforms. So that has given the impression policemen were involved."

A blind alley lay ahead of police as they sought the trail of slayers in Chicago's latest and bloodiest of all gang killings.

There were no witnesses when the assassins entered the S. M. C. Cartage Co. garage at 2122 North Clark st., lined up their victims against a brick wall and shot them down.

"WHAT? ME SHOT? NO!"

One of the victims, Frank Gusenberg, survived his wounds for a short time, and was conscious. He was the only hope of authorities for an eye witness account, but the code of the gunman kept him silent.

A police sergeant leaned over the gangster who lay dying at Alexian Brothers Hospital.

"Who shot you, Frank?" he asked.

"Shot me?" said Frank Gusenberg. "Why, nobody—shot—me."

But early today, when they completed an examination, coroner's physicians found 10 bullets in Gusenberg's body.

The "massacre" resulted in the virtual annihilation of the gang that took up Dion O'Banion's beer-and-blood-stained toga when the smiling Dion was slain in his flower shop November 10, 1924. It is from O'Banion's death that police date the gang wars.

INQUEST TODAY

Six of the victims were members of the gang of North Side booze racketeers and hijackers of which police say George (Bugs) Moran is head. Moran succeeded to O'Banion's leadership.

Moran still lives, the last of the O'Banion dynasty, but police could not find him and they were not certain that he, too, may have been killed.

Of the seven killed, only Dr. R. H. Schwimmer, an optometrist, was unknown to police records.

An inquest was called for today before a coroner's jury of prominent Chicagoans including Bert A. Massee, president of the Palmolive Company, John D. McCormick, dean of the law school at Loyola University, and Walter W. L. Meyer, master in chancery of the Circuit Court.

BOY HIT ON WAY TO ILL MOTHER

While on his way to take a valentine to his mother at Somerville Hospital, Irving Cassier, 12, of Washington ter., Somerville, was knocked down and dragged 50 feet by an automobile in Highland ave.

He was seriously injured and was taken to the same hospital where his mother lies awaiting an operation. Because of her condition she was not told that her boy was in another ward.

The boy alighted from a street car at Highland ave. and Crocker st. and started across the street. He was struck, according to the police, by an automobile operated by Eugene E. Boeing of Farragut ave., West Somerville.

Patrolman Leroy V. Pierce and Lieut. Albert E. Hughes placed the boy in a taxicab and took him to the hospital, where he was found to have multiple abrasions and lacerations, possibly a skull fracture and serious chest injuries. His name was not on the danger list.

His father was at the bedside of the boy's mother at the time of the accident. She was asking for her son and the father, knowing he was on the way to the hospital, could not understand why he did not arrive.

Accordingly police were asked to find him but the mystery was dispelled when the injured boy gave his name to doctors. His father was then told of the accident.

After Boeing's papers were examined and found correct, he was not detained at the scene of the accident. Later he appeared at police headquarters with a lawyer who made a statement for him that the boy ran in front of his machine, according to the police.

the colonel said: "If it is possible, I hope no searching parties will be out looking for me now or any other time when I am not accounted for over a period of hours or a few days.

"Flying is a safe business and it should not be necessary to send searching parties for a flier who is simply out flying some place. Searching parties are not sent out for train passengers or automobile drivers."

Reminded that he was not an ordinary train passenger or an ordinary motorist and that his fame had made him a public character, he replied: "I did not invent that system.'"

'Mad Oiler,' Who Clung to Ship, to Get Riches

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 15 (AP)—James L. Posey of Seattle, dubbed "the mad oiler of the Alloway" when he staked his life against a storm and stuck with his ship after the rest of the crew had left her to be ground to pieces on the Aleutian Island rocks may reap a small fortune because of his daring.

Posey was taken off the Alloway by the coast guard cutter Chelan. He was examined by the Chelan's physician and found to be physically and mentally sound. Meanwhile, the gale had begun to die down and a few members of the Chelan's crew boarded the Alloway, whose anchor still was holding her a few yards off the rocks of Aiktak Island in the Aleutian Archipelago. Fire was started under the ship's boilers and preparations made to guide her to safety.

Nor far distant another abandoned ship, the Japanese freighter Maiyo Maru, which had attempted to aid the Alloway, was drifting back and forth with the tide. The 25 members of her crew were enroute to Japan aboard a rescue vessel. Posey found the emergency radio set of the Alloway and without experience in operating it, managed to keep the air full of meaningless dots and dashes for two days. Meanwhile the Chelan went to his rescue.

The amount of salvage to which Posey may be entitled is indefinite.

BARE RICH DRINKERS IN '400' RUM RAID

$500,000 IN LIQUOR IS SEIZED

New York, Feb. 15 (AP)—Prohibition authorities had in their possession today a list of wealthy persons who they believe were patrons of a raided firm of bootleggers.

Raiding the premises of the Monroe Lamp & Equipment Company in Manhattan and the International Postal Supply Company in Brooklyn, the agents said they not only found the customer list but $500,000 in high grade liquors and documents indicating the firms supplied the bulk of the liquor for big dinners and social affairs.

Five men and one woman were arrested on charges of conspiracy and released under $7500 bail each.

Assistant United States Attorney Watts said evidence in the hands of the government proved the existence of a conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, the tariff act and to conceal imported goods on which tariff had not been paid.

TECH FLIER IS BELIEVED TO BE SAFE

Mystery surrounding the whereabouts of Hichard Holihan, Technology junior, who hopped off from the Boston airport in the snow storm and was not reported at any flying field along his proposed route to Flint, Mich., was believed dispelled today.

Although they had not heard from him directly, airport officials said he was doubtless a flyer reported in news dispatches as having made a successful forced landing at Sheffield.

This flyer was reported has having given his name as "Dick" Clark. Information that he gave regarding his start and his destination, together with a description of his plane, convinced Holihan's friends that it was he.

The flyer who landed at Sheffield said he became lost in the storm and ran out of fuel. After getting gas, he took off, but struck a barbed-wire fence, damaging a shock absorber. When this was repaired he made a fresh start for the West.

Squirrels Start in Search of Food

Stamford, Ct., Feb. 15—Connecticut may be the Nutmeg State, so-called, but the thousands of squirrels harboring within its confines cannot see things that way. The food scarcity has been such that they have been forced to chew awnings and gnaw into attics. A migration into Massachusetts and "Little Rhody" is under way.

CLERGYMAN, 30 AND MARRIED, IS FRESHMAN

Philadelphia, Feb. 15—The University of Pennsylvania is believed to have a unique student in Charles Urban, a married clergyman, in his 30's, with a wife and family, who entered as a freshman in 1925.

Urban is a Pennsylvania Dutchman, six and a half feet tall, tipping the scales at close to 200 pounds. He has a lumbering gait which was a source of amusement to his classmates when he first appeared on the campus.

His clothes, as measured by the eyes of his more collegiate friends, were decidedly not campus style. They were illfitting and plain, the trousers stopping a few inches short of his ankles, his large hands and wrists extending some distance beyond his cuffs.

FRIENDLY WITH ALL

Because of his generosity and good nature, he became popular with all the students. Everyone was soon calling him "Charlie" in spite of the fact that he was a married clergyman with a family. He joined in wholeheartedly with college activities. His warm-hearted smile and ready band broke down all the artificial barriers between himself and the ordinary college man.

The university has a set of traditional regulations for freshmen. They must wear black "dinks" black ties and black socks, including black golf stockings if they want to wear knickers. They must carry matches for upperclassmen. They are only permitted to enter buildings through certain entrances.

OBSERVES RULE

When the student council heard that there was a 30-year-old clergyman in the incoming class who had a small parish in a Philadelphia suburb as well as a wife and family, they were somewhat awed at the thought of enforcing the freshman regulations on him, so he was notified that it would not be necessary for him to conform. But "Charlie" had already outfitted himself with his freshman trousseau. He laughed at the idea of being excused. "Why?" he asked, "I am a fresh and proud of it."

When the call was sent out for freshman football candidates Charlie was not approached. Although the coaches looked enviously at his large frame, they did not think that he would have the time or inclination to go out for the freshman football team. But Urban was one of the first to report. Smiling broadly, he loped onto the field for the first practice, making known his hopes to win a position in the line.

Boston Fight Fans Winging Way, to Miami by Plane

Three Boston men bound for the Sharkey-Stribling fight took off from East Boston airport today in a Bellanca monoplane piloted by Lieut. Arthur Langley. The party included Ray C. Van Arsdale, owner of the plane; C. Desmond Wadsworth, Boston insurance broker, and Roger S. Coolidge, a Harvard student.

The plane will stop at Richmond, Va., and is scheduled to arrive at Miami tomorrow afternoon.

'Only a Million, Shucks! Go Get Some Real Money'

New York, Feb. 15—"If you've got only a million dollars you don't amount to shucks. Go out and get some real money."

That is the straphanger's advice—but the "millionaire straphanger," John E. Andrus, capitalist and philanthropist of Yonkers, who will be 88 tomorrow.

Times have changed. He rides in an automobile now.

John D. Rockefeller, Henry Ford, Thomas Edison and Jack Dempsey are in Florida? "I see," said Andrus, and added:

"I can't afford to take a vacation like they can. I hope to save enough money this year to be able to get down there next winter.

"My recipe for long life and happiness is a clear conscience, simple diet, plenty of sleep, ample work and playing the game straight with everybody.

"I have succeeded largely because I have practiced thrift. Only one person in a hundred knows how to take care of his money. I expect to make 75 per cent more money this year than last year.

"Government everywhere is costing people too much.

"The way women dress has not relaxed their morals. It has improved their health. It was never good for them to be all laced up in corsets, tight clothes and whatnot."

SISTER OF IRISH MARTYR GUEST AT CONCERT

Miss Eilleen M. Barry, sister of Kevin Barry, martyred Irish patriot, is expected as the guest of honor at a concert to be held in the Arlington Theater Monday evening.

The concert is under the aupsices of St. Ita's school committee. The committee headed by Daniel Doherty, organized for the Centrad Council of Irish County Clubs, has arranged for the showing of motion pictures depicting scenes in various parts of Ireland.

A special musical program will be given by Miss Eilleen O'Dare, harpist. Richard J. Dwyer, past president of Suffolk County, Ancient Order of Hibernians, will make an address dealing with the national origins act now before Congress.

Miss Barry, whose brother was executed by the English during the Black and Tan war, is in the United States in the interests of St. Ita's school, Cork, Ireland. It is a coeducational high school founded in 1916 by Miss Mary McSwiney. Its purpose is the teaching of Gaelic as the "national and natural language" of the Irish people. Gaelic is the only language spoken in the school. All courses are given in that language and no other tongue is allowed.

The school depends for its maintenance on funds received from private sources. All proceeds from the concert will be devoted to this purpose.

The concert has been indorsed by the Sinn Feinn Society, Irish Republican Army Veterans, County Donegal Association, County Down Association and the County Kerry Association, the members of which have aided materially in the compaign to raise funds for the school.

U. S. MAN TELLS OF HUGE FARM SOVIET PLAN

London, Feb. 15 (AP)—Having turned down an offer to become a sort of agricultural director in Soviet Russia for five years, T. D. Campbell, wheat grower from Montana, arrived in London today en route home. He had visited Russia on the invitation of the Soviet government to give advice on agricultural problems.

He described the Soviet offer as giving him virtually supreme control of the government's 15,000,000-acre farm project, beside which his own 95,000-acre holdings in the United States seemed like a little cow pasture.

"Russia's scheme of state farming is a tremendous project—as big as the plan for the Panama Canal appeared when it was first suggested—and it is by far the greatest thing ever contemplated in the history of the world's agriculture," Mr. Campbell told the Evening Standard.

In Moscow he saw 5000 young Russians being trained as tractor dirvers and was informed that the Soviet project would provide work for 100,000 persons in the busy season. Some individual farms in the vast scheme cover from 100,000 to 500,000 acres and within three years the Soviets plan to purchase $400,000,000 worth of agricultural and roadmaking machinery.

"As a practical farmer accustomed to big undertakings I think the scheme is feasible," he said. "It is the first real recognition of the advantages of industrial agriculture which must come in every country to solve the agricultural problem."

The Montana man added that his own interests prevented him from accepting the Soviet offer.

$60,000 FIRE IN GOULD MANSION

Tarrytown, N. Y., Feb. 15 (AP)—A fire which police believe was incendiary early today destroyed an unoccupied country home of Mrs. Finley Shepard, the former Helen Gould. Two previous attempts had been made to fire the property.

The property, which was known as Woodycrest and once one of the show places along the Hudson river, was built by the late Jay Gould 40 years ago, and until a few years ago had been used as a home for New York crippled children.

The loss was placed at $60,000.

Two Youths Given Terms as Robbers

Bernard Kelly of 22 Eastman st., Dorchester, and Walter Macura of 373 Hollis st., Framingham, arrested through the efforts of Mrs. Mary Daley of 156 Holmes ave., Dorchester, pleaded guilty in the superior criminal court to seven counts of breaking and entering. Judge Lummus sent Macura to state prison for from three to five years and Kelly to the reformatory for an indefinite sentence.

ASK A MILLION FOR MORE 'WET' CASE LAWYERS

Washington, Feb. 15 (INS)—The Government needs $1,000,000 worth of additional legal talent to help clear up the congestion of liquor cases in Federal courts.

Atty.-Gen. Sargent today submitted to the budget bureau a request for additional funds with which to employ special attorneys to prepare cases for trial. The exact amount asked for was not divulged, but it is understood something more than $1,000,000 was mentioned.

The request for the $1,000,000 will go to Congress along with the Treasury request for $2,570,000 for tightening up the customs and prohibition bureaus.

There are now more than 21,000 prohibition cases pending in Federal Courts, with little expectation that they can be disposed of for months without additional legal talent. Most of this congestion has been due to inability to get the cases prepared for trial.

967 FLU DEATHS IN ENGLAND; 2 FIND CURE

London, Feb. 15 (AP)—Deaths from influenza in 107 large English towns numbered 967 last week, as against 652 and 321 respectively for the two previous weeks.

London reports showed 331 dead compared with 198 the preceding week. The figures brought the total of influenza dead since January to 2340. There were 714 deaths in the same period in 1928.

Deaths from bronchitis and broncho pneumonia were double those of last year, there being 1981 since February 1.

In view of the increasing epidemic particular interest was attached to advices from Berlin of a cure. Dispatches said that Prof. Louis Lewin, toxicologist, and Paul Schuster, neurologist, of the University of Berlin had discovered a symptomatic remedy.

LITTLE OF DRUG FOUND

The drug is described as an alkaloid, only to be obtained from a species of creeper or liana indigenous to Mexico and Ecuador where it is used by Indians as a narcotic. It was said to be particularly beneficial in treatment of cerebral influenza. The discovery, however, is regarded as in its initial stage. Georgaphical distribution of the plant is yet to be determined and the doctors themselves know of only 1.2 grams of the drug throughout the world.

Meanwhile Europe continued in the grip of an unprecedented cold wave. Generally there was no amelioration of the bitter cold, with snow and ice causing numerous deaths and untold suffering.

BRIDE IS FROZEN

Speedy action at the coal mines in Czechoslovakia promised relief to centers where fuel shortages had reached a serious stage.

One particularly pathetic story came from Poland, where a young peasant bride going from her native village to a church in Piotikow for her wedding was found frozen to death in her sleigh.

The Riviera suffered from the worst snow in 140 years. Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, with a population of 90,000, was buried in snow and entirely isolated.

Pick Name Today for New Artery

The public hearing on the petition urging that the new traffic artery from Morton st. to the Neponset bridge, which is yet unnamed, be christened "Gallivan Boulevard" in honor of the late Congressman James A. Gallivan, was to be held today in the auditorium of the street commission on the fourth floor of City Hall Annex.

The entire membership of the City Council is on record in favor of the project, for the two-mile roadway over parts of Codman, Morton, Adams and Marsh sts. and Neponset ave., Dorchester, now nameless, causing much confusion in the postal designations of houses on the artery.

CALLS TOIL THE KEY TO PLEASURE

This is the second of a series of three articles based on an exclusive interview with Henry Ford.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
(Copyright, 1929, by International News Service)

Fort Myers, Fla., Feb. 15—Declaring that "work" is his formula for success, Henry Ford, the richest man in the world, today amplified that assertion by adding that a good wife or a mother who exerts the right influence also plays a tremendous part in helping an ambitious man attain his goal.

"I cannot estimate the amount of credit my wife should be given for whatever success I have achieved," said Mr. Ford with some feeling. "It has been incalculable."

"Fully 50 percent of the credit," interjected Harvey Firestone, millionaire rubber man who was listening to the interview which took place on Mr. Ford's beautiful tropical estate, where he has been in semi-seclusion.

"Yes, all of that," said Mr. Ford.

I reminded Mr. Ford that his old friend, Thomas A. Edison, world's famous inventor, had stated on his 82d birthday last Monday, that he did not know a single person who was happy.

EDISON IS "HAPPY"

"Do you know one happy person?" I asked him.

"Yes,," he replied. "I think Mr. Edison is the happiest man I know. He has reasons to be happy. He always has been busy. Early in life, through hard work and the use of his great brain, he accumulated enough money to do things. His creative genius has resulted in untold good for humanity.

"Think of the satisfaction that must give him.

"Edison's work has always been constructive and genuinely worthwhile. That is the thing that makes for happiness. He radiates happiness. Any one is happy in his presence. It is contagious."

Ford remarked that "people ought to be more cheerful." They take themselves too seriously, he thought, adding:

"Generally when people are serious they are in some sort of trouble. And it is usually their own fault if they are in trouble."

"What is your formula for success?"

"Work," said Mr. Ford, succintly.

MRS. LINDBERGH WON'T WED; 'HE' IS MARRIED NOW

New York, Feb. 15 (INS)—A newspaper first carrying the report of Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh's engagement to Capt. F. A Anderson printed a picture showing the couple standing together. The same paper today printed an apology to both Mrs. Lindbergh and the captain, explaining that the Italian photographer who took the picture had been "misinformed."

From London came the explanation that the word "fianco" on the photograph caption, which means "standing next to," may have been misconstrued as meaning "fiance."

Although no word has been heard from Mrs. Lindbergh or Capt. Anderson aboard the Wilson, International News dispatches from San Francisco pointed out that Capt. Anderson has been married for exactly 39 years and that his family is happily awaiting the captain's homecoming in Oakland.

HOOVER STARTS 500-MILE TRIP IN FLOOD AREA

By GEORGE E. DURNO,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 15—In his lifetime role of a skilled and competent engineer, President-elect Hoover set out from his pre-inaugural headquarters at 8.30 this morning for a two-day motor trip that will carry him nearly 500 miles through the area hardest hit by the Florida hurricane last September.

Accompanying Mr. Hoover were Maj.-Gen. Edgar Jadwin, chief of army engineers; Representative Frank Reid (R.) of Illinois, chairman of the House flood relief committee; Governor Doyle E. Carlton of Florida, who breakfasted with Hoover, and the State's experts and engineers.

Today's trip will cover the 233-mile stretch between Miami Beach and Clewiston, on Lake Okeechobee. Arrangements have been made to put the Hoover party up over night at Clewiston.

The President-elect will motor back to Palm Beach to attend a luncheon given in his honor by James Francis Burke of Pittsburgh, general counsel for the Republican national committee. The lunch is to be given at the Bath and Tennis Club, of which E. T. Stotesbury, Philadelphia railroad magnate, is president, with about 80 of the most notable men wintering in Florida in attendance.

Following the lunch the party will return to Miami Beach and prepare for the trip to Washington on Monday.

FORD SAYS GOOD WIFE IS AN AID TO SUCCESS

"It's the only thing I know of that will do it. A successful man must use his mind, his hands and his feet."

H. K.'S MODERN YOUTH

"Looking back on your own successful life, what achievement or what moment, gave you the biggest thrills?"

Mr. FFord smiled and then replied, cryptically:

"The last moment. That's the best moment for everybody. You feel better today than you did yesterday. You have learned something. You have gained experience. Now I enjoy the manner in which you are interviewing me."

The writer thanked Mr. Ford and returned the compliment.

"What is your position on the question of a college education?" he was asked.

"It's all right. Some want it, others don't. No two people want the same thing. People arrive at the same goal by different routes. If a boy has a desire for a college education he probably will get something out of it. But, after all, it's the stuff the boy is made of that counts."

"What is your impression of the young people of today? Are they going in too much for luxuries and amusements?"

'No, sir, they are all right, they are alert and active and they are going in for experience. I confess I don't know what luxury is. If having more things is implied, I think the viewpoint is wrong, for what they are really getting is experience."

GIVES ADVICE ON HEALTH.

Mr. Ford ventured the opinion that we are living in a "ripened world." He said people should take more interest in one another, and particularly, old folks should take more interest in the younger people. And people over 50 are doing just that thing, he added.

'How is your health, Mr. Ford? Do you diet and exercise?"

"I feel fine," he replied. "If I don't. I know it's my own fault. When you do not feel right it is generally because you have overeaten or have eaten the wrong things.

"Not too much, is a safe plan, and do not mix the three different foods. I mean fruit, protein and starch. They should be eaten separately, an all fruit meal, an all protein meal and so on."

"Do you play golf or tennis?"

"No. When I want exercise I run or chop wood. A brisk run on rising in the morning and just before retiring at night is a great thing for the system."

Mr. Ford told how many of his executives had voluntarily started dieting and found it of inestimable value to their health and efficiency. He said that at his boys' trade training school at Wayside, Mass., the 30 pupils have been on a diet all winter. And not a single one of them has been ill a day.

PRAISE FOR "WIZARD."

Discussing Mr. Edison's experiments with rubber plants which the famous inventor undertook for the purpose of giving this country a big home grown rubber supply in the event of a national emergency, Mr. Ford predicted that Edison "will find something that can be grown all over the country."

In the third and concluding article tomorrow, Mr. Ford will discuss prohibition, war agitation, the crime problem, capital punishment and economic conditions.

YALE TO STUDY BEHAVIOR OF ALL MANKIND

New Haven, Ct., Feb. 15 (AP)—With an endowment of $7,500,000, an institute of human relations whereby man himself will be the center of study has been formed at Yale University.

Designed primarily to correlate knowledge of the mind and body and of individual and group conduct, the institute will enable further study of the interrelations of the factors which influence human actions.

The fund is made available by gifts and subsidies from the Rockefeller Foundation and the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial which total about $47,500,000 and the income from $3,000,000 of other Rockefeller donations and the commonwealth fund established by Mrs. Stephen V. Harkness.

To enable the university to make a study of human behavior in all of its aspects, the departments of natural and social sciences will cooperate with the institute and will act as the point of contact between them and as a center for their graduate and research work.

Sociologists, biologists, psychologists and economists will combine with their colleagues in such applied fields as law, medicine and psychiatry.

EVICT 10 NUNS IN MEXICO

Mexico City, Feb. 15 (AP)—The Department of Interior has closed the Catholic school "Jeanne Chezard" here and evicted ten nuns charged with leading a community life in the school. Convents are prohibited under the Mexican constitution.

The Mother Superior, Maria Concepcion Solis, said that she and her nuns belonged to the Order of the Incarnate Word.

They were warned they would be punished if they violated the religious laws again.

Hundreds, Jobless, March in London

London, Feb. 15 (AP)—Six contingents of unemployed men are now converging on London after marching from various industrial centers in England and Scotland. They plan a demonstration here on Feb. 24.

They have been given generous aid enroute and notwithstanding the bitter weather few seem to have abandoned the march. On the other hand there has been little increase in their numbers and the total of those arriving is not likely to exceed a few hundreds.

Elihu Root 84 Today, to Sail for Europe

New York, Feb. 15 (AP)—Elihu Root, who is 84 years old today, will sail for Europe at midnight on the Italian liner Augustus as an unofficial emissary of the United States to the World Court.

At the home of the former Secretary of State it was said he was in excellent health. He planned to spend the day quietly with his son, Elihu Root, Jr., and his daughter-in-law.

Leaps to Next Building to Save Man

New York, Feb. 15 (INS)—Glancing through her apartment window, Mrs. Della Rooney saw Chas. Bitter, 65, converted into a flaming torch as his clothing blazed from a broken stove connection. Running to the fire escape, she jumped the seven-foot chasm between the two buildings, threw water on Bitter's burning clothing and rolled him in blankets until the fire was out. Her work was in vain.

Dwyer Boy Fails to Return Home

Joseph E. Dwyer, missing Dorchester youth, to whom his mother telegraphed money at his request from Philadelphia yesterday, failed to return today.

Young Dwyer, who lives in Hancock st., first sent a message to his mother in which he declared he had been shanghaied on a rum-running tug which was then in New York harbor. A request for money for carfare followed and then another message from Joseph stating he had received the money and was starting home.

WALSH CARRIES OIL BATTLE TO SENATE FLOOR

Washington, Feb. 15 (INS)—Oil and rum formed the legislative diet of the Senate today as it began consideration of the Walsh Salt Creek oil report, while the Jones prohibition bill remained "unfinished business."

The oil report filed by Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana would criticize the Interior and Justice Departments for delay in canceling Harry F. Sinclair's contract for royalty oil in the Salt Creek fields of Wyoming. The Senate public lands committee rejected the reptrt by a 7 to 6 party vote and Walsh brought it to the floor of the Senate for justification.

There was every indication that the Senate, too, would reject the report, since the insurgent bloc apparently has deserted Walsh's leadership.

In the committee room, Senator Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, insurgent chairman, led a fight against the Walsh report and voted against it. He said it agreed with certain portions, but disagreed with Walsh's condemnation of Assist. Atty.-Gen. William J. Donovan, mentioned as a possible choice for Attorney General in President-elect Hoover's cabinet.

The report consummated the committees' lengthy inquiry into disposition of the government's royalty oil from the Salt Creek fields.

It was shown that for the whole period of the Sinclair contract, the government received $300,000 less income than it would have under a contract calling for purchase of the oil at market prices. At one time both Donovan and Walsh approved the contract's legality, but both changed their minds later.

Republican insurgents say Walsh didn't take the inquiry far enough as the original solution authorized an investigation into the actual leasing of the Salt Creek fields by the Democratic Wilson administration.

Prince Seeking Air Routes in Sahara

Algiers, Feb. 15 (AP)—Prince Sixte de Bourbon, turned explorer, is crossing the Sahara desert with an automobile expedition on a 7500-mile journey to Lake Tehad and back again, seeking to establish land and air routes between Algeria and the Central African lane.

WOMAN SYMPHONY PLAYERS ARE GUESTS OF MRS. EDWIN F. GREENE

Tea Given in Honor of Miss Ethel Leginska

WITH CUSTOMARY HOSPITALITY, Mrs. Edwin Farnham Greene entertained at tea yesterday, at her home on Chestnut st., members and friends of the Boston Women's Symphony Orchestra. Perhaps no hostess in Boston has given herself more wholeheartedly than Mrs. Greene to the development of music and the welfare of musicians. Her music room in which an organ is installed has been put at the service of many visiting artists, and many of Boston's own musicians have entertained there the wide circle of Mrs. Greene's friends.

THE TEA WAS IN HONOR of Miss Ethel Leginska, conductor of the Boston Women's Symphony Orchestra, which has just returned from a most successful concert tour of the country. Miss Leginska will conduct her first concert in Boston this season at Jordan Hall next Sunday afternoon. Among those who are particularly interested in this orchestra are Mrs. Langdon Frothingham, Miss Annie Endicott Nourse, Mrs. Josiah Quincy and Mrs. Henry Parkman.

AN ANNUAL AFFAIR OF interest to everyone from debutante to dowager is the Harvard Military Ball, which is scheduled this year for the ninth of March. It takes place at the Copley-Plaza, and already an elaborate program has been arranged. The list of sponsors includes ex-Governor and Mrs. Fuller, Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Youngman, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Sims, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Andrews, Brigadier-General and Mrs. Jackson, Brigadier-General and Mrs. Davis, and Admiral and Mrs. Stearns.

SIR ARTHUR CLAVELL SALTER is the guest for the week of Mr. Roland W. Boyden. He arrived in Boston early in the week and last night was the speaker at the first of a series of supper conferences held at the Boston Architectural Society by the League of Nations Association. Many prominent Boston women have taken an active interest in this association, including Mrs. J. Malcolm Forbes, Miss Frances G. Curtis, Miss Eugenia B. Frothingham, Miss Lucy Lowell and Mrs. John F. Moors.

ALL MANNER OF PREPARATIONS are being made for the Junior Supper Dance at the Copley-Plaza this evening. As usual, there will be a number of dinner parties preceding the dance. Miss Priscilla Rhodes will entertain a group of friends at her home on Beacon st. Another group will go on to the dance from the Brookline Country Club where Mr. James Baldwin is host for the evening.

NEW YORK IS MORE THAN ever a Mecca for Bostonians when the opera has departed and the Lenten season sets in. Mrs. Robert H. Stevenson has been staying at the Ambassador. Mrs. Edwin Webster returns today from a short visit to her daughter, Mrs. Henry Harris of Park ave.

BOSTON'S SKATING MARVELS

Mrs. Theresa Weld Blanchard and Nat W. Niles took part in the American Legion winter carnival at the Boston Garden. (Staff photo.)

First Concert to Be Held Next Sunday

AGAIN LAST NIGHT MRS. Blanchard and Mr. Niles, Boston's most prominent fancy skaters, delighted an enthusiastic audience at the Boston Garden. The American Legion's first annual winter carnival was a very gay affair which included a thrilling hockey game and the appearance of many internationally famous fancy and figure skaters. Miss Maribel Vinson, holder of the national singles title, to whom was given the honor of skating before the King and Queen of England during her trip abroad last winter, was also on the program.

THIS YEAR'S DEBUTANTES are not to be deprived of the joys of attending a Harvard Junior Prom after all. For a time it seemed as if this affair, which has always stood out as one of the most important on the debutantes' calendar, was to be banished into the limbo of forgotten things, but the more conservative members of Harvard's junior class have won their point, and on March 15 the Prom will take place at the Harvard Union.

Civic Orchestra in Jordan Hall Concert

The Boston Civic Symphony Orchestra, an organization composed of talented amateurs, and led by Joseph Wagner, gave a concert in Jordan Hall. The opening number of the program was Weber's Overture to "Oberon." A suite from Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha Ballet" was played for the first time in Boston, and the conductor's "Divertissement in the form of Theme and Variations" was given its first performance anywhere.

Harold Schwab, organist, was the soloist, playing Handel's Fourth Concerto in F, and Boellman's "Fantaisie Dialoguee.' Borodin'. "On the Steppes of Central Asia' completed the orchestral program.

Revere Wife Asks Police Find Hubby

With tears in her eyes, Mrs. Esther Sudhalter, 23, of Atlantic ave., Revere, appealed to the police today to help her find her husband, Abraham Sudhalter, missing more than four days.

Since his departure their elder child, Leonard, 4, has been crying day and night for him, Mrs. Sudhalter said, and she has been without funds. Friends are caring for the family. There are two children, the youngest being a girl, seven months.

Believe Dr. Wilbur Given Cabinet Post

Stanford University, Cal., Feb. 15 (AP)—Trustees of Stanford University today granted an indefinite leave of absence to Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, university president. Prof. Robert E. Swain, dean of the Stanford chemistry department, was appointed acting president.

Granting of leave to Dr. Wilbur convinced political circles here that he was slated for a post in the Cabinet of President Herbert Hoover.

Friends of Dr. Wilbur said they believed the post of Secretary of the Interior had been offered to him and that he had accepted.

MISSION PARISH LENTEN DRAMA WINS PLAUDITS

The universal appeal of "Pilate's Daughter" was further demonstrated last night at the initial performance of the current season in St. Alphonsus Hall, Roxbury.

An appreciative audience sat for three hours while the simple drama was unfolded by the girls of the Mission Church parish.

The simplicity and directness of the play, coupled with the sympathetic portrayal by the cast, served to make the production worth while seeing.

It concerns the story of a rose, endowed with miraculous powers after it had touched the garment of the Saviour on His way to Calvary.

In the hands of Claudia, Pilate's daughter, the rose raises a dead child to life, causes a spring to gush from the wall of a cell in the Lamertine prison where Christian prisoners are confined to await execution and finally brings about the conversion of Leah.

Men Walk Ice in Seine for First Time in Years

Paris, Feb. 15 (AP)—Men walked on ice in the Seine in the neighborhood of Paris today for the first time in years.

Opposite the French foreign office, the river was frozen for more than a third of its breadth and the ice near the shore easily supported the weight of a man.

There was a slight letup in the cold overnight, but the weather predicted renewed cold with the possibility of a heavy fall of snow.

WARM WEATHER AND RAIN HEAD FOR BOSTON

All up for the grand thaw!

Two areas of warmth, moistened with gentle rain, are slated to converge upon New England from Minnesota and Texas within 24 hours to wipe out the one and one-half inches of snow precipitated by yesterday's storm.

Additional cheer is also provided by the local weather man in his long-range prediction that developments in Alberta, Canada, presage a spell of real warmth hereabouts, based on rises in temperature in the northwest province of from 30 to 50 degrees.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: partly cloudy tonight; Saturday mostly cloudy and warmer, with rain in the afternoon or night; moderate south to west winds.

Buries Victim With 'Legs Sticking Up'

Philadelphia, Feb. 15 (AP)—Russell Sloat, 28, of Philadelphia, was held today on suspicion of having slain John Lowry, Scranton, Pa., taxicab driver, whose blood-stained taxicab was found wrecked in a ditch.

Detectives learned from Sloat's sister, Lillian, and Edward Saunders of Mt. Ephrain, N. J., that Sloat had boasted having been forced to "bump a guy off" in Scranton and bury his body beside a mine creek. "I didn't have time to make a very good job of it," Sloat was quoted as saying, "and had to put the body in the ground with the legs sticking out."

Chelsea Mayor Raps Insurance Firms

Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea is one of the most outstanding opponents of the present automobile compulsory insurance law. He claims motorists of his city are being discriminated against in the matter of insurance rates.

Chelsea's mayor favors a State Fund, being of the same opinion as Frank A. Goodwin and the Boston Evening American that no profit should be made by private insurance companies from this line of business.

"Fifty-eight per cent of the accidents in which Chelsea motorists figure, that occur in Chelsea, are with cars owned by persons living outside Chelsea," said Mayor Quigley. "Most of the cars with which Chelsea motorists are in collision in Chelsea are cars on their way to Revere Beach.

"Because of the large number of accidents in Chelsea our city has been placed in zone one by the insurance commissioner. That is not fair. Why should the people of Chelsea have to pay a premium because our city is an extra-hazardous place to drive? The reason it is extra-hazardous is because of the congestion due to out-of-town cars passing through our city on their way to our beach. That's what we are up against, and no insurance official or State official will be able to convince Chelsea car owners that they are being dealt with fairly.

EXPENSES HIGH

"Another phase of the situation—and an important one—apparently overlooked by many, is the inexcusably large percentage of the premium paid by the car owners of Massachusetts retained by the insurance companies for expenses.

"The $3,000,000 a year, approximately, paid to agents in commissions has been mentioned, but there is nearly $4,000,000 additional charged up to expenses. Thus a total of almost $7,000,000, of the trifle less than $17,000,000 paid in primiums by motorists during the year 1927 was paid out for expenses. That is 41 per cent, or, stating it in its simplest terms, 41 cents of every dollar, paid for protection being diverted from its main purpose.

"Of the $16,806,377 taken from the pockets of car owners in 1927, only $7,872,411 was paid out in claims by the insurance companies during the whole year of 1927 and up to September 30, 1928. I seriously doubt whether as much as $10,000,000 will ever have been paid in claims originating in that year.

"Yet the rates now in force are expected to yield about $20,000,000 for the present year. Surely the State will not continue compelling its citizens to pay a dollar, in advance for every half dollar which they get back eventually, the other half being lost in the process.

WILL ELIMINATE WASTE

"Furthermore, a substantial part of the half-dollar recovered goes to attorneys for collection fees. The public, therefore, probably receives no more than 25 or 30 cents of the original dollar invested. Will any one contend that this investment, made mandatory by the State, is a good one? To the contrary, it is obviously a bad one; indefensibly bad."

Under the bill filed by Frank A. Goodwin and the Boston American to establish a State fund to provide compulsory insurance at cost, this waste and expense will be done away with, and the motorists of this State will get just what they pay for.

A saving of at least $7,500,000 annually will be made by the Bay State car owners if the bill becomes law. This would result from charging a flat rate of $16 insurance on passenger cars, $25 on trucks and $50 on taxis, rental cars and busses. Zoning would be eliminated, the car owners in the cities paying the same amount as those in country towns and rural districts.

Public Invited to Auto Bill Debate Tonight

Five hundred persons are expected to attend the debate of Young Men's Debating Club of Dorchester tonight in Dorchester high school on the automobile compulsory insurance law. The debate is free. Residents of Dorchester and vicinity are invited to be present to hear this important subject debated. It will begin at 8 o'clock.

The affirmative will be handled by John R. Brosnan and Joseph F. Rogers while the negative will be argued by Daniel C. O'Leary and John F. Good. The judges will be William D. Kenney John B. Hynes and Francis X. McInnis. Joseph J. Hurley of Boston school committee will be chairman. Arthur J. Sweeney is director of the debating club and will have charge of the arrangements

Mothers Warned Of Colds That Follow the Flu

Attack Weakened System and Pave Way for Pneumonia or New Case of Influenza

BEST TREATED EXTERNALLY

Physicians advise that the chief danger in this epidemic is after influenza. Then, more than ever, cold attacking the weakened system may lead to bronchitis, pneumonia, or a second and more severe case of flu. This is especially true of children.

Flu nearly always leaves the stomach upset. Internal medication should, therefore, be avoided, as it so often further disturbs the digestion and thus retards recovery.

But if a fresh cold comes, don't let the child keep it overnight. Just rub Vicks on throat and chest at bedtime. As it is applied externally, Vicks can be used freely even on the youngest child, with no fear of upsetting a delicate stomach.

Vicks acts 2 ways at once (both absorbed and inhaled) to check the cold and helps avoid serious complications. And, of course, it is just as good for adults.

[illegible] patriotic and civic organizations [illegible] nationwide [illegible] Contest which is being sponsored in the New England section by the Boston Evening American [illegible] with [illegible] the [illegible] newspapers.

URGED TO ENTER

School children throughout the United States [illegible] Commissioner of Education to participate in the great patriotic Flag Contest of the United States Flag Association [illegible] President Coolidge.

In an interview which he gave in Sacramento, Cal., just before he left for Washington, Commissioner Cooper declared:

"I hope that many thousands of school children of the forty-eight states and the territories will enter this Contest."

Importance of the Flag Contest to the youth of America was emphasized by the commissioner in the following statement:

"The average human mind has difficulty with abstract ideas. Accordingly, monarchies, headed by able royal families, have enjoyed an advantage not suspected by most people, in that the ruler has been the personal embodiment of the national ideals. In America we have attempted to substitute for the person of the monarch, the flag as the concrete symbol of the abstract principles.

LAUDS CONTEST

"Consequently, the contest, designed to arouse the interest of school children in the United States flag cannot help making for better citizenship. For behind the flag will be found the lofty ideals and traditions of the republic.

"I hope that many thousands of school children of the forty-eight states and of the territories will enter the contest."

Allen J. Hill, principal of the Dalton high school, Dalton, says:

"I can assure you that we will enter the contest because it seems to me that such emphasis on the symbolism of our country should prove worthwhile."

Frank F. Knights [illegible] Scout Master of the Bellingham Boy Scouts writes:

"I am Scout Master of the Bellingham Boy Scouts and my wife is in charge of the Girl Scouts, and we would like our boys and girls to try to win."

These lucky ones will be those who submit the best list of answers to the 75 questions relating to the history, ideals and symbolism of the American flag and who submit the most attractive accompanying essay on the theme, "Old Glory's Greatest Glory."

COOLIDGE AT HEAD

[illegible]

The United States Flag Association has done me the honor to invite me to serve as its honorary president, and I am doing myself the honor promptly to accept the service.

"Unless there is an eternal readiness to respond with the same faith, the same courage and the same devotion in the defense of our institutions which were exhibited in their establishment, we shall be dispossessed and [illegible] will seize our inheritance. It is therefore, well that the fires of patriotism be kept burning and that our national ideals and traditions be emphasized and kept before our people.

"The work [illegible] United States Flag Association [illegible] deserves the support of every good and loyal citizen. I am glad to be among those who are pledged to its program of patriotism."

THE purpose of the contest is to obtain a practical plan as a substitute for prohibition which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily capable of enforcement by State and Federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

"What a Miracle that would be... a Coughless Audience,"

Says Morris Gest,

world famous producer of "The Miracle," and also Balieff's "Chauve Souris."

"Many times I have stood in the wings and watched my unfortunate artists out there, struggling against a volley of coughs. The annoyance of the audience, and the embarrassment of the coughers, created a most unhappy situation.

"Peggy Wood and Eddie Cantor blame harsh tobacco as the chief cause of theatre coughs. And recommend OLD GOLDS. I join in that . . . for OLD GOLDS are most kind and considerate to my throat. If I ever stage 'The Miracle' again OLD GOLDS shall be given out with each ticket . . . for a quiet house. And what a miracle that would be!"

MONEY RIDDLE KEEPS WALL ST. UNEASY

By W. S. COUSINS.

New York, Feb. 15—Thursday's prolonged "no announcement" meeting of the New York Reserve Bank directors, which adjourned last night without making any change in the rediscount rate of the bank, did not help to solve the riddle of the money market, and traces of nervousness and unsettlement were seen in all sections of the stock market in trading today.

Though most of the industrial favorites opened higher with extreme gains of 3 points in the high priced favorites, the wave of selling which passed over the market in the first hour wiped out the bulk of these early gains. The market wobbled around, with the coppers and the utilities making the best showing, while the steel, copper and motor stocks dropped back to the level of Thursday's close.

The reserve board's weekly report disclosed a shrinkage of only $101,000,000 in brokers' loans. It also showed that the reserve banks were carrying out their policy of squeezing stock market borrowing facilities by reducing their government bond and acceptance holdings $42,603,000.

The reserve board's advisory council meets today for an extensive pow-wow in Washington, and Wall Street looks for another official "statement" on credit conditions.

Anaconda's new high [illegible] and Andes Coppers jump to 57⅛ featured the copper stocks.

American and Foreign Power jumped over 6 points to 125¼, and Utilities Power & Light sold in large volume around the year's highest price, above 48½.

International Combustion, the Durant favorite, sold above 103 in the leadership of the specialties. The rails started the day higher, but fell back under an avalanche of selling orders.

Changes Are Narrow on the New York Curb

New York, Feb. 15 (INS)—Curb market stocks were fractionally changed in both directions today. North American Aviation lost ⅛ at 16⅜, United Light & Power advanced ¼ to 38, Rainbow Luminous declined 1 to 55⅞ and Electric Investors gained ⅛ to 110⅛. Selective Industries eased ¼ to 28¼.

City Financing in Three Centers

Fall River awarded $[illegible] loan due November 7 to First National Bank of Boston at 5.186 per cent. Other bidders were: Fall River National Bang, 5.625 per cent, and S. N. Bond & Co., 5.625 per cent.

Newport, R. I., awarded $100,000 loan due September 3 to Faxon, Gade & Co., at 5.42 per cent. Other bidders were: Old Colony Corporation 5.48 per cent, Aquidneck National Bank, 5.49 per cent; Salomon Bros. & Hutzler, 5.59 per cent plus $1.50, and S. N. Bond & Co., 5.89 per cent.

Fall River will receive bids until 10 a. m., February 20, for $45,000 4¼ per cent Technical high school bonds dated February 1 and payable 1930 to 1944.

Keene, N. H. will receive bids until noon, February 19, for $35,000 4¼ per cent. City Hall bonds dated February 1 and payable 1930 to 1936.

American Express Purchase Approved

Washington, Feb. 15 (INS)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today authorized the Railway Express Agency, Inc., sponsored by 86 leading railroads, to acquire the American Railway Express Company. To finance the plan the commission authorized the agency to issue 1000 shares of capital stock and $32,000,000 of [illegible] per cent gold bonds. The stock will be sold at $100 per share for cash and the bonds at 97¾ per cent of par.

How Boston Cash Is Put in Banks

City of Boston as of January 31, 1929, had total deposits in national banks and trust companies of $[illegible]4,356, including certificates of deposit amounting to $1,000,000, of which $250,000 was in each of the following banks: Merchants National Bank, Second National Bank, Exchange Trust Co. and United States Trust Co. Largest depositories for cash were Merchants National Bank, $431,603, and First National Bank, $348,978.

Mackay Stock 95 Per Cent Turned In

At annual meeting of The Mackay Companies Vice-Pres. William J. Deegan stated that in excess of 95 per cent of the outstanding shares of The Mackay Companies had been turned in for exchange under the agreement with International Telephone & Telegraph Co. Retiring trustees were re-elected.

Investment Bankers Study Security on Municipal Board

INVESTMENT BANKERS ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA takes up the matter of varying security back of town and city bonds, affecting values, as suggested by the Financial Editor of the Boston Evening American.

The latest report of progress by the Investment Bankers Association is made as follows: "In line with the recommendations presented in the report of the Municipal Securities Committee at the Atlantic City convention, the committee has communicated with leading municipal bond attorneys on the matter of tax restrictions.

"We quote from the letter sent over the signature of Henry T Ferriss, chairman of the committee:

"'At the annual convention of the Investment Bankers Association of America, held at Atlantic City in October, 1928, the board of governors approved and adopted the report of the Municipal Securities Committee which contained among other things the following:

"'This committee is definitely and firmly committed to the principle that no situation is sound or satisfactory that places a restriction upon the amount of taxes that can be levied and collected for the payment of municipal obligations. This and preceding committees have made many attempts to eliminate the tax limitation provisions in existing municipal [illegible] Unfortunately, our efforts in this direction have not been entirely successful.

"'It is the purpose of this committee to recommend to bond attorneys that they include in their opinions a statement to this effect when bonds are payable from limited taxation. Any other course would be, in effect, a misrepresentation of the character and value of the security offered.

* * *

"'Also, at [illegible] committee and the board of governors approved a set of specifications for municipal bond circulars which included, among other things, the following:

"'10. Explanation of proposed method of repayment.

"'b If payable from limited property taxes, the following sentence should be used. These bonds are payable from ad valorem taxes levied upon all property within the limits imposed by law.

"'In accordance with the foregoing the undersigned, as present chairman of the municipal securities committee of the association, is now formally submitting to you the recommendations and suggestions approved by this committee and the board of governors of our association. The obvious purpose is to prevent any confusion or misunderstanding in municipal bond [illegible] taxation which is available to principal and interest of the bonds, and we desire that in these cases where ad valorem taxes are limited as to rate or amount, legal opinions should either contain a clause substantially similar to that above suggested for the circulars, or should in some other way clearly [illegible] the exact limitations imposed by the charter or law.

"'We respectfully invite your sincere and prompt co-operation in this matter and will appreciate hearing from you as to your future policy in this respect.'"

Lawmakers Seek to Punish Abnormal Speculation

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Feb 15—The abnormal begets the abnormal. Abnormal stock speculation has invited clamor for abnormal corrective measures.

B. C. Forbes

When a doctor discovers an abnormal condition, his aim is to bring back normalcy. But [illegible] care [illegible] medicines [illegible] the [illegible] cure.

Washington legislative physicians must have a care lest they apply nostrums bound to do more harm than good.

That the on-goings in Wall Street would lead to various dangers and troubles was clearly foreseen and repeatedly voiced in this column. Excesses always court disaster. Excessive speculation long has been rampant.

Let it here be emphasized, however, that "Wall Street" is not solely responsible. "Wall Street" is the nation's chief market place for security dealings, but a very great part of the speculative dealings has originated not in Wall Street or New York, but throughout the rest of the country. Indeed, city after city has pointed with something of pride to the record-breaking activities of its local stock exchange. And those of us who have traveled have been impressed by the fact that stock speculation is a daily topic of discussion in even the humblest of communities.

Therefore, it is wholly unfair to talk or act as if "Wall Street" was alone responsible for speculative excesses.

The writer has long counseled a return to sanity, to moderation, to normalcy in stock speculation—incidentally, incurring widespread denunciation for not joining the almost universal whoopee chorus. It could be foreseen by anyone familiar with financial history that the speculative orgy, involving heavier and heavier borrowing, would inevitably bring trouble, not only to unwary gamblers and speculators but to legitimate industry and business and employment. It was as plain as a pikestaff that, if speculators outbid everybody else for loanable funds and thereby drained this country and the world of available money and credit, other classes of borrowers, including merchants and manufacturers and other business men, would be denied accommodation except at a cost calculated to restrict enterprises and activity and, ultimately, employment.

Nor was it difficult to reason that punitive legislation would be invited with what consequences no mortal could foretell.

What our lawmakers have lost [illegible] in getting into action. How bitter the hostility aroused against "Wall Street" and how eager Washington solons are to rush drastic legislation on the statute books, can be gathered from these extracts from one day's Congressional record.

The Senate adopted the Heflin resolution requesting from the Federal Reserve Board suggestions for legislation to "prevent illegitimate and harmful speculation."

Senator Glass: "There is not a thing in the world constructive in the system of pure gambling that menaces the entire commercial and financial fabric of the nation. It is an absurdity, and there ought to be some statutory definition made of investment as contradistinguished from pure gambling, and laws should be enacted to put these people out of business. It is a matching of the gambling wit against the gambling wit. They do not produce a thing on earth that contributes either to the happiness or to the prosperity of legitimate business."

Senator Heflin: "Wall Street is becoming the most notorious gambling center in the universe. It is the hotbed and breeding place of the worst form of gambling that ever cursed the country. The Louisiana State Lottery slew its hundreds, but the New York State gambling exchanges slay their hundreds of thousands. The Government owes it to itself and to its people to put an end to this monstrous evil."

• • •

In the House, Chairman McFadden of the Banking and Currency Committee, announced he will introduce a resolution before March 4 for an inquiry into the operations of the Federal Reserve Board. He also stated he had written asking Governor Roy A. Young, of the Federal Reserve Board, if he cared to answer questions contained in a resolution by Representative Black, of New York, concerning the alleged conference between Governor Montagu Norman, of the Bank of England, and members of the Reserve Board.

Representative Black announced that unless satisfactory response was received, he would demand immediate action by the House.

• • •

One danger is that our Federal Reserve Banking System may be thrown into the political vortex, seriously unsettling financial and business confidence. Probably in the end sensible counsels will prevail, and no really harmful legislation passed. But should this be the fortunate outcome, no thanks will be due those who have persistently fanned the flames of abnormal speculation.

Weston Electrical

Weston Electrical Instrument Corp. declared regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents on class A, payable April 1.

MATHIESON Alkali earned $13.05 a share in 1928 on common against $11.27 in 1927.

JAN. EXPORTS SET NEW TOP

Washington, Feb. 15 (AP)—January exports from the United States, announced today by the Commerce Department as $491,000,000, set a new record for the month since 1921.

They were balanced by imports of $371,000,000, leaving a favorable balance of trade for the United States of $120,000,000. In January, 1928, American exports were $410,420,000 and imports $337,612,000, while the favorable trade balance was $72,808,000.

The January export total was exceeded several times by monthly figures of last year, but not by any other January records since 1921.

The international gold movement for the month was likewise shown to have gone heavily in favor of the United States, the country exporting $1,387,000 and importing $48,577,000. In January of 1928 American gold exports were $52,086,000 and imports $38,320,000, leaving a net loss of gold for that month of $13,766,000. The reversal of the gold flow has been greatly attributed to rising interest rates in the United States during the last half of 1928.

Silver exports for January were $8,264,000 and imports were $8,260,000. For January, 1928, silver exports were $6,692,000 and imports $6,305,000.

National Family Sales Up Sharply

January sales of National Family Stores, Inc., amounted to $192,250, as against $55,843 in January, last year, an increase of 247 per cent, it was announced yesterday.

For the 12 months ended Jan. 31 sales totaled $3,400,265, against $1,654,638 for the previous 12 months, a gain of 106 per cent.

Net profit for the year ended Jan. 31 was $381,387, equal to $3.87 a share on the common stock. Current assets on Jan. 31 totaled $2,744,623, while current liabilities were $570,075.

NEW ENGLAND'S SHIPYARDS IN READINESS

As we have previously stated, the excellent personnel of the Federal Reserve Board bars the idea that it has acted in any way other than according to its best judgment of what was for the general good. It surely was its duty so to act. The ex-officio members are Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and Comptroller of the Currency J. W. McIntosh.

• • •

Appointive members of the Federal Reserve Board are Governor Roy A. Young, Edmund Platt, Adolph C. Miller, Charles S. Hamlin of Boston, George R. James and Edward H. Cunningham.

Ward, Gruver & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, are distributing an analysis of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey).

Following a painstaking analysis of the gasoline tax situation in the various states, it was revealed in this column that no state had ever adopted a gasoline tax without making it higher later on. This was prior to the adoption of the gasoline tax in Massachusetts. Even before the tax went into force here [illegible] to have [illegible] reason.

• • •

That the trend in other states continues unchanged, is shown by the fact that Senator Comings, former state finance commissioner, at a joint meeting of the Vermont Senate and House finance committee urged an increase from three to five cents a gallon in gasoline tax. Ways and means committee had drawn up a bill for four cent tax. Several supported Senator Comings' proposal.

• • •

Two great states, Illinois and New York alone have no gasoline tax. Efforts are being made by Gov. Roosevelt in New York to have such a tax enacted in his legislation there. As it is today automobilists headed "down East" will still be able to buy their gasoline cheaper in Massachusetts than after they cross the State line. Heretofore, a familiar sight along the line has been the sign "Last chance to buy gasoline free from tax." Such signs, of course, were a big help to one of the Bay State's busiest industries.

We spoke this week of Weymouth's two replicas, one of Washington's home and the other of the Old State House, the latter Weymouth's new town hall. Replicas of New England buildings are to be found here and there. Jesse Winburn, banker, has selected the site of his $250,000 reproduction of the famous "Wayside Inn" of South Sudbury, and the replica of the noted house will be built on Forest ave., Milton Point, Rye, N. Y. With a water frontage of more than 200 feet on the Poningo Bay and Long Island Sound the estate will be a showplace of interest and will be Mr. Winburn's suburban home.

Readers of our column will recall mention made from time to time of New England's vast assets in the form of historical scenes, mansions, etc. Not only do these attract thousands of visitors annually, who leave a great deal of money in this section, but they also furnish a background for advertising our products. Everyone who motors is familiar, for example, with the U. S. Rubber and Socony glimpses of history.

Pepperell Mfg. Co. is another that builds upon an old name. Notice the "Kittery sheets" made from Lady Pepperell sheeting. Sir William Pepperell, who captured Louisburg from the French in 1745 lived in Kittery. The Pepperell mansion still stands there. Kittery has also boasted the mansion given by Sir William to his daughter, Lady Sparhawk, as a wedding gift. Its timbers were cut in Maine, sent to [illegible] and for shaping, etc., and then transported back to Kittery. Thus [illegible] stands as the first portable house in America, offering interesting trade mark possibilities up to date neglected.

• • •

Wall Street dispatch explains: [illegible] England wanted to [illegible] to advance her rediscount [illegible] making money higher, which would have an unfavorable influence on general trade. Now what we would all like to know is why, if that would be the effect in England, why would it not also be the effect here? As a matter of fact few banking authorities would venture to dispute the statement that [illegible] building industry has been largely held back by high money rates in recent months. Neither would many be found to deny that considerable building is as speculative as anything to be found in Wall Street.

MOREPOWERFOR INDIANAPOLIS

The generating capacity of the Indianapolis Power & Light Corporation, will be increased by 160,000 kilowatts by the construction of a superpower plant on the White river, five miles from the heart of the city of Indianapolis. This new plant, when completed, will be rated as one of the largest in that section of the country and will give the company a surplus of generating capacity sufficient to take care of all anticipated increase in the demand for current.

The funds for this project have already been provided. This plant will be unique in that it will have the advantage of the natural supply of water from the White river supplemented by that portion of the city's domestic water supply from deep wells returning to the river through the city's large modern sanitary disposal plant, the site of the new power plant being just a half mile down stream from the disposal plant. The advantage of this source of condensing water is considered important.

In laying out a plan of construction to keep ahead of the demand for current in the Indianapolis region, which embraces thirty-four small communities as well as the city proper, the Utilities Power & Light Corporation has arranged to build a high voltage transmission line encircling the city and tied into the new power plant. These new facilities will be connected through the American Gas & Electric Company and other large transmission systems, through to Pittsburgh, so that it will be physically possible for the White river plant to supply current to that city.

RATE INACTION IS PLEASING TO WALL ST.

New York, Feb 15 (AP) Wall Street was relieved today to know the Federal Reserve Bank of New York had left the rediscount rate unchanged at 5 per cent.

During a [illegible] meeting of the board of directors of the bank brokers kept their offices open and held private wire operators at their keys ready to flash the news to all parts of the country.

At 6:30 p. m. yesterday the notice was posted, "There is no announcement on the rate," which is the board's way of saying the rate is unchanged.

OPINIONS DIVIDED

No information was forthcoming regarding what took place behind the doors of the directors room, but observers said there were unmistakable indications that there had been a division of opinion among the members of the board over the advisability of advancing the rate.

The sharp warning of the Federal reserve board last week against the diversion of Federal reserve credit into speculative loans was fresh in the minds of operators when the board met.

During the week there has been a tightening of credit conditions through the sale of government securities and reductions in their holdings of bankers' bills. An advance in the rediscount rate was the strongest remaining weapon in the hands of the Federal Reserve Bank.

Among the board members who attended the meeting were Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank; George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank; Gates W. McGarrah, chairman of the board, and Edwin R. Kenzel, deputy governor.

PROTECTING THE POUND.

None of those present would make any comment or give any reason for the unusual length of the meeting.

It was said in Wall Street that some of the members have been opposed to such an extreme step as an advance in the rediscount rate in carrying out the policy of the Federal Reserve Board in Washington regarding credits.

Another element which was regarded as having a bearing on holding the rate unchanged was the international financial situation. The advance from 4½ per cent to 5½ per cent in the discount rate by the Bank of England last week shut off the flow of gold to the United States from London and caused a recovery in sterling exchange.

It was pointed out that an advance in the rate by the Federal Reserve Bank would have offset this.

Mohawk Rubber Co. 1928 Sales Up 15%

Net sales of the Mohawk Rubber Company for 1928 amounted to $6,590,000, an increase of 15 per cent over sales in the preceding year. President Miller at the annual meeting yesterday announced the possibility of resumption of common cash dividends at an early date.

Directorate was reduced to five members from eight.

New Consideration Faced by Trust Companies

INCREASE in the number of the investing public and the marked interest in speculative investments has forced a new consideration on trust companies, A. J. Young, vice-president of the Guardian Trust Co. of Cleveland, declared at the opening session of the tenth annual winter conference of the Trust Company Division of the American Bankers Association.

In his address, which was entitled "Swimming With the Stream," Mr. Young said that instead of trying to educate the investing public the trust company should itself be educated by the public. Progress was so rapid, he said, that the trust company officer who did not think five years ahead was not thinking at all.

The new and tremendously [illegible] investment class which has been created by stock speculation embraces everyone from the [illegible] finance down to janitors, according to Mr. Young, who said these investors care not for Florida booms, real estate, bonds, steel, wheat or cotton, but want "quick money." The situation has proved a [illegible] to aggressive salesmen of spurious securities, pool operators and whisperers of rumor and tips, he asserted.

Another result of the situation is that the public is no longer interested in "living trusts," said Mr. Young, advising his audience that it rested with the trust companies to develop something new. He pointed out that his company had devised the guardian custodianship as an alternative or a substitute.

Francis H. Sisson, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, told of the increasing growth of the trust company service maintained by banks. The service increased 49 per cent in 1928 over 1927, he said, and he quoted Joseph S. McCoy of the U. S. Treasury to show that 5 per cent of the 14,000 millionaires of the country have made trust agreements to settle their estates and administer their funds during the last two years. He said that the life insurance trust was the most rapidly growing form of trust service, pointing out that last year $700,000,000 in insurance policies was placed in trust, of which $90,000,000 was placed in New York City. The average trust was for $49,000 and some were as low as $5,000. He attributed the growth of trust service to the cumulative benefits of advertising.

• • •

Charles F. Wheaton, trust officer of the National City Bank, said that banks now realize they must copy the methods of industry and commerce in selling or merchandising their services.

John C. Mechem, vice-president of the organization, presided at the conference, which will last three days.

Marx takes him to headquarters.

CHAPTER 3

HAVING read the butler's story, the doctor decided a call upon Nina Karasova, dubbed "The Woman in Red" by the newspapers, might prove valuable. The doctor believed in scientific thoroughness and he was not entirely satisfied with the interview the police had [illegible] with the young woman.

With this thought [illegible] he climbed the steps [illegible] in the East Thirties where the young woman lived, and was [illegible] into the spacious hallway by a [illegible] maid. Miss Karasova occupied the second floor of the house. And Miss [illegible]

She motioned him to a chair and then seated herself.

"Miss Karasova," said the doctor, "I was struck in reading a statement by Mr. Sewell's butler that when you discovered Sewell had been robbed of the diamond you did not seem to take it to heart."

"How do you know of the diamond?" the girl interrupted, for the doctor's announcement startled her.

"You see, your late fiance, the butler kept a diary and he recorded many things, among them his search for this stone and how he came to get it."

"Now, Miss Karasova, what was the truth of the diamond? Of course, it wasn't stolen from Sewell."

"No," she said slowly. "It wasn't."

"And you knew that at the time."

"I didn't!" She shouted angrily. "I didn't know it. Sewell himself told me it had been stolen and I believed him. Why shouldn't I? He posed as a millionaire. He said he loved me. Do you think I would suspect him of treachery then?"

"When did you begin to suspect?" prompted the doctor.

"When I got to America. When he ceased being attentive to me. Oh, I might as well admit it to myself. He grew tired of me. Then I began to think. And then I felt I knew he had cheated me. He still had the stone."

"And did you know your fiance was determined to get it back?"

"Yes, and I didn't tell Sewell. I'll tell you the truth. I wanted to wash my hands of the whole [illegible]

Athletics Picked to Win A. L. Pennant

By DAMON RUNYON

STROLLING out into the little plaza opposite Mr. Jim Woods' famous Biltmore Hotel in Los Angeles one day last week, my famous West coast operative, T-69, otherwise Mr. Hap O'Connor, sat himself down upon a bench with the other loafers and fell a-brooding.

About him the little chickadees were singing sweetly in the palms.

Above him the sky was an opalescent blue, and the sun was shining down jovially, as it ever shines in Los Angeles. From the sidewalks around the plaza came the pleasant chatter of the citizens audibly expressing their joy over being alive, and in Los Angeles.

BUT Mr. O'Connor by no means partook of the gladness and cheer, and good nature, that surrounded him as he sat with the other loafers. He was in morose mood.

He glared savagely at a nearby chickadee, and looked about for a rock with which to slay the wee fount of sweet song. Perhaps Mr. O'Connor had had a bad night, although as a rule a bad night is a good night for Mr. O'Connor, if you get what I mean.

Sinister thoughts permeated his skull. Gloomy thoughts. Such as the New York Yankees. Thinking about the Yankees Mr. O'Connor peered at the nodding palms about him, and had there been a rope dangling from any one of them, I have no doubt that Mr. O'Connor would have immediately appended himself thereto by the neck.

Instead, he arose, quit the company of the other loafers, went down to the office of Mr. Marcus Aurelius Kelly, and pounded out a letter to me, expressing his dire forebodings about the Yanks.

I have Mr. O'Connor's letter before me. I do wish Mr. Kelly would have the typewriters in his office repaired. Between the faulty type, and Mr. O'Connor's misses when he aims at the keys, I have to guess at much of his meaning.

"THOSE Yanks back there in your town are going to slide the slide this year (writes Mr. O'Connor). Ruth will slow up sure. He was feeling his age last year.

"The Babe will find the going plenty tough, or I miss my guess. He is a good friend of mine, and no better fellow in baseball, but he has been slamming them homers long enough now. He did more than any five men in baseball. Now is the time for the Babe to cool off!

"As Ruth steps out of the picture, so goes the Yankees. Pennock will have trouble with his throwing arm, and the catching is not any too good.

"Gehrig at first will be the club's outstanding star all season and will take Babe Ruth's place in the baseball world. Gehrig hits a baseball harder than Ruth. More on a line, while the Babe golfs 'em high and far away.

"Lynn Lary, the Oakland shortstop, will be the Yanks' regular shortstop once he is given a chance to play every day. Lary is one of the best young ball players in the country. Looks great on ground balls, never had a sore arm in his life, and has never been on the rubbing table in a clubhouse. Is a powerful right-hand hitter. Hits to all fields. Is not a straightaway hitter.

"HE looks great on touching runners coming into second. Lary also handles the double steal play in good shape. That is, with runners on first and third. This lad will give your New York papers plenty to write about once he gets under way.

"I pick the Athletics to win the American League pennant. (Mr. O'Connor is perfectly terrible as a picker.—Editor's note.) St. Louis Browns second; New York Yankees third; Washington fourth; Cleveland, fifth; Detroit, sixth; Chicago, seventh, and Boston, eighth.

"Here's the cycle of a ball player. The rookie beats out an infield hit by a stride. The player in his prime just beats it out. The hasbeen is nailed at first by a stride. The old legs tell the story. Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and Eddie Collins can still hit as well as they ever could, but the legs no longer carry them around the base paths and in the outfield.

"Here's how I dope the National League to finish: Chicago, first; Pittsburgh, second; New York, third; St. Louis, fourth; Cincy, fifth; Brooklyn, sixth; Boston, seventh, and Philly, eighth. The Cubs will be away out in front the early part of the race, with Hornsby in the regular lineup.

"PITTSBURGH still has a great young ball club. New York will be one-two-three all season. The St. Louis Cards blew up in the last world's series and made a lot of bushers out of themselves. They will not recover in 1929.

"Joe McCarthy is the smartest manager in baseball today. More active than McGraw. John is getting around the age when a man is cranky, etc. We have a big league manager on the Pacific coast. His name is Wade Killifer. Red Dog they call him for short. He is a brother of Bill Killifer, and manager of the San Francisco Mission Club.

"If any big league club is looking for a colorful manager they couldn't miss on Red Killifer. He can handle men, and is a great showman, and a good fellow. Plenty smart. Nothing bushy about Red, even if he is in minor league baseball.

Ask Mark Kelly about him. Kelly is hook, line and sinker for him as a big league manager, and so are the other sports writers on the Pacific coast.

PERES IN 2ND GAME WITH PHILLY FIVE

Tomorrow evening at the South Boston high school the fans will have a chance to see the Philadelphia Colored Giants oppose Pere Marquette.

This is the Giants' last appearance in this section before they leave for a trip through Canada. The Giants are the greatest attraction in New England basketball circles and have defeated every team of note during the season.

The Peres acquitted themselves nobly in the Boston Garden on Thursday evening when they played the colored five, losing by a scant margin of four points.

The difference in the score was made by the Giants' accuracy at the free try line as both teams scored eight baskets.

Capt. Harry Jennings of the Caseys is playing the greatest game of his career and John Dixon, the elongated center, furnished a great game at the Garden, holding the powerful center, Cooper of the Giants, scoreless.

The "Caseys" are undefeated at South Boston this season, but they will be put to the real test of their ability when they stack up against the colored team. The banner crowd of the season is expected.

EVEN MONEY ON FORGIONE, FLYNN GO

Vincent Forgione, Italian lightheavyweight from Philadelphia, will arrive today and work at Toland's Gymnasium for his 10-round return match with Arthur Flynn of Lawrence at the Arena, Monday night.

Their return battle is expected to be just as sensational and just as hard-fought as their first bout.

Betting on the bout is at even money. Flynn, in superb condition from a steady diet of training at Toland's is confident that he will knock Forgione out.

The young man is a puncher, and he will back his heavy left hook and equally heavy right hand against anything Forgione has in his working kit.

The bout is to be staged at popular prices, ranging from 50 cents to $3, and judging by the heavy advance sale, another near capacity crowd will flock into the Arena Monday night.

Col. Bob McKirdy has done a good job on the preliminary card, which consists of two eight rounders and five four rounders, a total of 46 scheduled rounds of boxing.

WESLEYAN FIVE FACE TUFTS AT MEDFORD

Tufts basketball team, anxious to start a new victory string after their defeat by New Hampshire Wednesday, will meet the Wesleyan five this evening at the Cousens gym.

The Jumbos will put their best five on the floor for the last time this year.

This will be the last time that Sumner "Red" Ritters will be able to start in this year. His time of grace will then be over and he will be unable to participate in any sports.

His loss is a serious blow to the baseball team as well as the hoopsters as he is one of the most promising pitchers now in school.

As usual Capt. Herrmen will team up with Ellis at the forward positions. Horton will undoubtedly see service in place of Herrmen before the game is over.

SETS SAIL AGAIN

ERNIE SCHAAF

Ernie, former sailor, battles Con O'Kelly in the Hub Garden tonight. It is the second start of the week for Schaaf. It is a tough stunt. A bad handicap for Ernie.

Wisconsin and Penn to Meet on Grid in 1930-31

Philadelphia, Feb. 15—A two-year football agreement between Wisconsin and Pennsylvania has been signed, according to an announcement made today by Graduate Manager Ernest B. Cozens of Penn. The two teams will meet in 1930 at Madison, Wis., and in 1931 at Franklin Field. They have never met before and the Badgers have not appeared in the East for several decades. In 1930 when Penn goes to Wisconsin, Notre Dame comes here. In 1931 the Red and Blue will play at South Bend.

TECH IN GYM MEET WITH TIGERS

The gym squad of M. I. T. opens their season today at Princeton where they will tackle the Princeton gymnasts.

The M. I. T. team was very successful last year, winning the New England intercollegiates and placing two men in the nationals. This year's team should be even better.

The Princeton engagement is one of the hardest on the M. I. T. schedule, so that if the Engineers win this meet, they should find the going easy for the rest of this season. The team has a new coach, Edward Hincks.

A welcome addition to the M. I. T. team this year is Wes Reynolds. Reynolds was on the squad two years ago, but was ineligible last year.

Lack of Hair is so Unnecessary

You, too, can have a healthy head of hair

Fifteen years ago the man who found himself becoming bald was helpless to prevent it. He tried a lot of highly perfumed, so-called tonics which usually did more harm than good.

Today baldness is treated in a sensible, scientific way by The Thomas' scalp experts, who have made it a life study. Only a specialist who understands, who is qualified to distinguish abnormal scalp troubles and scalp disorders, can give you permanent relief.

The Thomas' World Famous Hair and Scalp Specialists are correcting baldness and promoting hair growth in thousands of cases because the right scientific treatment is applied to each particular case.

Scalp examination is free—no obligation—come in today.

Braves Depart for St. Pete Training Camp Today

PLANSKY, CRONIN IN PARTY

Pick Up Players Along Route; Batterymen and Coaches Work Monday

and will also make the boys forget all the mean remarks that were tossed around during the hectic winter.

Bill Cronin, catcher, and Tony Plansky, pitcher, are the two athletes who will park on the Everglades Limited. They will be accompanied by a few club officials and the scribes. As the party rolls along, athletes will be picked up here and there.

Johnny Cooney, ready for a real year, will join at Providence. The new chiropractical trainer will get aboard in New York. Johnny Evers, the Right Eye and a half, steps into the picture at Washington tomorrow morning.

By the time the train reaches the camp Sunday a dozen would-be stars will be brushing the cinders off their moist brows, and as many more will be waiting to greet them.

The Brave battery candidates were ordered to report for first practice Monday morning, and the orders weren't requests, if you know what we mean. This is going to be a Brave year when nothing but work will count, and the boys who do not hustle will get the air before the time comes to draw salaries.

NO LOAFERS WANTED

The fact that many athletes were carried along because somebody thought they might come through sometime was the principal thing that drove President Fuchs into trying the managerial job.

He paid the salaries and saw the [illegible]. So he decided to do away with hopes and get down to actualities. According to his announced policy, anybody who isn't ready to play ball when the season opens, will find himself slated for other parts.

If the judge goes through with this policy, he will more than make up for whatever managerial essentials he may lack. The Braves have spent five sad years, hoping. This time they will go in for results, quick.

The sharpshooters and receivers will have [illegible] 10 days to get ready for the boys who chase flies, [illegible]

[illegible] the system [illegible] the training of pitchers [illegible]. For the last few campaigns the club has [illegible] and fielded [illegible] fell down because the chuckers could not deliver.

More alibis have been turned into the Wigwam than into all the other baseball headquarters put together. Said alibis have been expensive, and none will be accepted this year.

BRAVES BASEBALL PROBLEM

The Braves present the strangest problem in baseball this year. The club was rated last spring as a first division contender. As things turned out, it was lucky to escape the cellar.

And the outfit looks better now than it did 12 months back even though the slugging Hornsby has trekked away to Chicago. The acquisition of Evers, Maranville, Gowdy and Joe Dugan, should mean something.

There's enough brains and experience in that gang to get the results that should be furnished by the extensive collection of talent. The new strategists will be optimists, rather than hopers against hope.

A new spirit should mean a new ball club.

Dempsey, Sharkey Go in Chi Likely

By JACK CONWAY

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 15—Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey will clash in Chicago if they meet in the ring this year, according to an announcement made today by William F. Carey, vice-president of Madison Square Garden corporation.

Carey revealed that Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's pilot, has already agreed to terms for a Dempsey-Sharkey match in Chicago.

The Boston manager is also willing, according to Carey, to let Sharkey box Max Schmeling at the Yankee Stadium in New York in June.

Dempsey still refuses to make a definite announcement as to whether he will stage a comeback but there is little doubt but that the Tiger intends to take another shot at one of those record purses.

Jack Conway

Carey declared he believed a Dempsey-Sharkey match would draw a gate of $2,000,000.

Cyclone Bill believes Sharkey and Schmeling, in the event the Boston battler gets by Stribling, will draw $700,000 in New York.

Carey is elated over the ticket sale for the Sharkey-Stribling bout, which takes place on February 27. He says a gate of $400,000 is assured.

Another meeting will be held today in an effort to pick the referee for the contest. It will be attended by Johnny Buckley and Pa Stribling and the athletic committee of the Miami Post of the American Legion.

It is unlikely that the parties to the fight will be able to come to terms on the referee. In that event the Massachusetts Boxing Commission will be asked to name the third man in the ring.

REF AND ALTERNATE

There will be a referee and an alternate referee. It is likely that the officials will be picked from Johnny Brassil, Johnny Martin, Jack Sheehan and Joe O'Connor.

Former Governor Alvan T. Fuller will be in Miami at the time of the fight and has secured reservations for a party of six.

Boxing Commissioner Daniel W. Lane and Mrs. Lane are already here. They plan to go to Tampa for a few days the first of next week, but will be back for the fight.

The greatest array of wealth to ever gather for a boxing match will be on hand when Sharkey and Stribling enter the ring.

Millionaires and billionaires from all parts of the world are here and intend to remain over for the fight. Many more people of wealth now in Havana have secured reservations for the contest.

FANS GET BREAK

The ringside seats are now sold through the first thirty rows. The fans in the cheaper seats are getting a break in connection with this bout. There is not a poor seat in the circular arena, built by William F. Carey.

In the event of a Dempsey-Sharkey bout in Chicago, Carey plans to build a similar arena, but on a larger scale.

The cost of the Miami arena has been reduced to $[illegible] which is $30,000 below the original estimate. Carey figured he could build an arena at Chicago which could seat 125,000 fans for $100,000.

Sharkey added a kick to the ballyhoo in connection with bout when he blazed through an eleven-round workout at the Miami Kennel Club. He boxed two rounds each with Johnny Grosso and Paul Hoffman, punched the small bag for three rounds, the large bag a round, skipped rope for two sessions and shadow-boxed for a round.

Earlier in the day Sharkey covered four miles on the road and played 18 holes of golf.

While Sharkey was stepping on the gas in his training, Stribling accompanied Baby Stribling upstate. Young Stribling seconded his brother in a boxing bout. Pa Stribling is afraid his fighting son will go stale and so does not intend to work him too hard.

Arrows Tilt With Tigers Tomorrow

Stanley Jackson, who used to spare for Jimmy Herberts on the Bruins' forward line in the 1925-26 season, will be in the lineup of the Philadelphia Arrows when they meet the Tigers in the Arena tomorrow night.

Jackson was obtained from London of the Canpro League a month ago. He reported with the flu, however, and has just begun to hit his stride as an Arrow.

His goal against Springfield Wednesday night enabled the Arrows to win and his aggressive play at center ice has made him second choice for the position.

He is expected to work on the relief line with Charley Cahill and Harry Meeking, two other former Bruins.

The Arrows will arrive in Boston tomorrow morning by the night train. They are in the midst of a winning streak and have improved their position to such an extent in recent games that they loom as a threat for a playoff position.

Cruickshank Returns

Bobby Cruickshank, professional of the Progress Country Club, White Plains, N. Y., is back home following a winter golf tour in the West and South. Cruickshank is making preparation to sail for England next week.

He was also a member of the Harvard-Yale team which competed against Cambridge and Oxford Universities at Sheppard Brush, England, in a dual meet.

TITLE AMATEUR FIGHT DATES

Dates for the two most important amateur boxing fixtures of the season have been announced by the New England Association of the A. A. U.

The New England championships will be staged at the Boston Arena on Monday and Tuesday nights, March 18 and 19, while the national championships will also be held at the Arena, and will extend through three nights. The dates for this tournament will be Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, April 8, 9 and 10.

Bouts will be held in all eight championship classes in the New Englands this year as usual. These classes will consist of 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160, 175 and heavyweight.

Regular championship medals will be awarded to the winner and runner-up in each class. The winners will represent New England in the junior national championships to be held in Chicago, March 28 and 29.

Paavo Nurmi to Run in K. of C. Carnival

A 5000-meter run has been added to the list of events to be decided at the Knights of Columbus annual athletic meet in Madison Square Garden on March 16. Paavo Nurmi has agreed to start in this event and invitations have been sent out to Willie Ritola and Edwin Wide to compete against the Flying Finn.

The "Mile of the Century," another feature on the program, will bring together Conger, Martin, Edwards and Elliott. An invitation to start in this event has been sent to Porge, the latest Finnish sensation.

Stribling Record Poor—Sharkey

By Jack Sharkey

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 15—"Look out for Stribling's right hand. If you don't, you will get knocked cold."

I have received this warning from some of my friends who point to the fact that the Georgian has knocked out his last 15 opponents.

If you take the trouble to study the names of these easy [illegible], however, you will find that many of them were unknown. They have been termed "a flock of chauffeurs and gardeners" by some of the newspaper boys.

It is natural that I should be interested in Stribling's record as I shall have to test my ability against his on February 27. I find that Stribling is a first class boxer and a fairly stiff puncher, but not a knocker-out.

When in there with Berlenbach, Loughran, Risko and men of that class he didn't send over any dream smashes. In all, Stribling has engaged in almost 300 bouts, but other than possibly 50, these bouts have been [illegible] of the [illegible] variety.

"PA" STRIBLING is one of the greatest showmen in the boxing game. He has an able assistant in "Ma" Stribling. They were in the vaudeville game years ago and so they know how to furnish their son with the necessary color to make him a great drawing card.

During their campaigns, they have visited every tank town in the United States. They have accepted small purses so that Young Stribling could have hand picked opponents. The result has been he has piled up a great array of victories and at the same time has made considerable money.

When Stribling has smacked the "chauffeurs and gardeners" on the chin, they have kissed the canvas and called it an evening's work.

How will his reaction be when he slams me on the chin and I come right back at him?

IT is very discouraging for a supposed good puncher to land his best sock and to find that it does not make any impression on his opponent.

K. O. Christner had quite a reputation as a puncher when he arrived in New York. He had tipped over Knute Hansen and he thought he could also stop me.

In the third round, I took one of Christner's best bets right on the chin and then shot a right hander to his body. When I did not go down under the force of his blow, I could see Christner's eyes pop out of his head. He couldn't understand it. Stribling will probably experience the same kind of a sensation.

One of the most discouraging things in the world is to hit a fellow with all of your dynamite and then to have him come roaring in at you with a big wallop in each hand.

WHEN I first started boxing, Dempsey was the king of the world of swat. He was knocking his opponents dead with left hooks. I found that Dempsey shifted before he let his left hook fly and when he did let the punch go everything he had was behind it.

I have had much success with this feint shift, particularly when I have been pitted against big slow fellows like Harry Wills and George Godfrey.

I do not intend to employ this [illegible] against Stribling as I would against a bigger and slower opponent. If I did, I would probably do a great deal of missing.

It is my plan to shoot plenty of short left hooks and jabs at the Southern youth. Then, when the opening presents itself, I shall drive with my right hand to the head or body.

Right hand blows to the body are particularly effective. The chief fault with the average novice boxer is that he devotes too much of his attention directing punches to the head. He figures this is the only way to score a knockout.

I UNDERSTAND that Stribling is being quoted a favorite in the early betting. This is good news to me. I always win when on the short end of the betting while I am liable to suffer a reverse when I am the favorite.

I was on the short end of the betting in my tussles with Wills, Godfrey, Floyd Johnson and others and I shattered the dope. I was a heavy favorite over Dempsey and lost.

I am enough of a sailor to be a little bit superstitious. So you won't find me weeping if Stribling goes to the post a betting favorite.

The fact the bout is being staged in the South is one of the reasons why Stribling is a favorite. It is argued he will get all of the breaks.

This is an injustice to Stribling. In the South, I find that the crowds want to see the best boxer win. They would like to see Stribling prove himself the best boxer, but if he fails to do so I know the crowd will give me what credit I am entitled to.

Fight crowds are known for their fairness the world over. All they ask is action and they pay off on the fellow who furnishes it.

So if you're coming down for the fight, buy your sport goods back home.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Health Hint

WASHING the hair too often is not a good thing. Frequent soaping removes the oil in the scalp and makes it dry and scaly. Dandruff may result from this. Once a week is a fair average for a hair wash.

"Hello," replied Allie and Zoom in concert.

Zoom fingered his derby almost as awkwardly as a country boy. [illegible] very eloquent, he couldn't think of a good wise crack.

"Dad's asleep in the library," Allie whispered. "We've been very quiet—we didn't like to disturb him."

"Yes, dear, he wanted to see you," replied Mrs. Sterling. "No wonder he fell asleep. He left for business hours before you were out of bed and he had a trying day."

Allie seemed to reach a sudden decision. "Are you game, Zoom?" she whispered in an aside.

Zoom couldn't see what she was driving at, but he nodded assent.

"That's too bad," Allie continued. "Zoom and I wanted to see him especially, mother." Then she added hurriedly, "We had something important to tell him."

Zoom looked puzzled. This was a new one. He hadn't wanted to see Mr. Sterling especially. What was Allie getting at?

"Zoom's going to start out and hunt for a job the first thing in the morning," Allie went on. "And when he saves enough we're going to——"

"You dears!" exclaimed Mrs. Sterling. "Daddy will be so pleased."

Zoom stood in open-mouthed amazement. He seemed to be involved in some mysterious deal without consultation or assent.

He [illegible] Allie's elbow. "What's [illegible]" he whispered. [illegible] stuff about [illegible] trodden [illegible]

"That's fine," said Mrs. Sterling. "Dad will be [illegible] I'm sure."

[illegible] Zoom [illegible] dear," said Allie. "You [illegible] me; [illegible]

Zoom went [illegible] in a daze, [illegible] Allie [illegible] her [illegible] a mo[illegible] cushions, tired out. Then she leaned forward [illegible] on the [illegible]

And Allie went up the stairs with moist eyes as her mother entered the library to rouse the lone watcher and tell him that all was well.

The SKY RAIDER

by COL. LINDBERGH'S FLYING AIDE Donald E. Keyhoe

Story of Love and Danger in Air Mail Service

CHAPTER 29

FOR the first time in many days, Dick was jubilant as he flew along [illegible] Old Man Rand! By now Carmichael would have [illegible] the Governor, telling him to wait for the prepared statement [illegible].

And perhaps [illegible] would have forced the remainder of the truth from Perez. No matter, it mattered, for Perez had broken [illegible] the names of the gang [illegible].

[illegible] corner [illegible]. He turned his [illegible]. A plane [illegible], its engine obviously [illegible] open.

It was a [illegible]. He [illegible] waited.

There was [illegible] to his surprise [illegible] recognized Mary [illegible] something [illegible] that he did not get [illegible]. What could be wrong?

He started to climb, but she shook her head, [illegible]. That must mean only one thing. The Governor had not believed their story! She was urging him [illegible] fail with the message.

He waved reassuringly [illegible] before speeding up. She had taken a heavy mail ship [illegible] p, a type she had not flown before. He watched anxiously, for she seemed to handle it with difficulty.

Reluctantly, he reached for his throttle. But just then a spurt of dark smoke came from the exhaust of the other plane. [illegible] and the ship dropped astern, [illegible]ing down into a spiral.

A thousand feet below, Mary was leveling off to land. Dick banked around for a better view. She would have no trouble for the field was large and [illegible]. [illegible] consternation gripped him.

At the last moment, when it had almost stopped, the ship [illegible] to grief, apparently as its wheels struck some obstacle. [illegible] the tail had come up. The plane was now on its back.

Dick [illegible] as [illegible] he could. At that slow speed [illegible] over would hardly be [illegible] but he had [illegible] across the field at 100 feet. [illegible] seized him as he [illegible] movement. Mary might be [illegible] underneath, perhaps seriously hurt.

He landed as quickly as possible, stopping near the overturned plane. Jumping out, he dashed across the field. As he stooped down there was a sudden movement under the wing.

The next instant Dick was stupified to look down the muzzle of an automatic. But the amazement that left him staring helplessly was not at sight of the gun—but of the man whose amused eyes rested on him.

It was Carmichael!

Carmichael's left hand was pressed against the mouth of Mary Rand. He released her now, and emerged from under the plane, leaning against it to watch both of them. Wearily, slowly, Mary got up from her knees.

Carmichael! Dick's mind was still paralyzed. He made a puzzled gesture.

"Rather neat, Trent, getting you down this way," said Carmichael pleasantly. "Miss Rand was helpful as she was always. Not that it didn't require considerable persuasion to get her into this plane back at the field. Fortunately, no one witnessed our little argument."

Carmichael still grinned. Dick stared. Mary—Mary had been forced into the front cockpit! She had had no controls. Carmichael had crouched down in the rear, flown the ship from there, even slitting a hole in the fabric through which to peer out.

"Why, oh why, didn't you go on?" she half whispered.

Dick shook his head vaguely. Swirling thoughts made a chaos of his brain, a nightmare of this incredible scene. Then, out of that chaos his thoughts took shape. Something seemed to explode in his mind.

"Carmichael—you—you killed Lawson!"

"Uncanny mind you've got!" Carmichael exclaimed. "You seem to see everything! My boy, you've been throwing away your talents in the Air Mail!"

Dick scarcely heard the scoffing unruffled voice. His mind was speeding back, trying to reconstruct, trying to put together the pieces of the whole puzzle.

"Not but what I admit," Carmichael said, dropping his irony, "that I was surprised when you figured out that gas-gauge. That was smart of you, Trent. You gave me a scare. Fortunately I managed to reach Perez first and gave him his instructions."

"And I was right—from the very first!" Dick burst out, unheeding. "You killed Lawson!"

"Yes," he went on, "I admit that [illegible] part of my plan. Robbery [illegible]. Perez and I fixed it together. I [illegible] that night to wait for him after Perez had fixed the garage. But I had no notion Lawson was armed. So I had to [illegible] a wrestler's trick I learned out in the East, got him down and tripped him. I struck too hard. I got the money. I was really upset that morning. I had everything ready. Perez and I were going to ship on a tramp steamer. Then Miss Rand, dear girl, came to the rescue. The moment she pointed out it was the old man's pistol, I saw the rest."

He laughed, relishing every word of his account.

"It was simple enough to sneak that canvas sack into Rand's house. While you two went into the garden, I slipped down to the cellar and popped it in the furnace where it wouldn't burn. That was a clever move, Trent! Give me credit for that. Then all the [illegible] in heaven worked for me. Blessed if the old man didn't refuse to offer an alibi! When you and Miss Rand managed to unearth one, I conferred with Von Stechner."

"You bought him!" Dick exclaimed. "You bought his lie!"

"My dear boy, you could buy Von Stechner's eyes if you wanted to pay for them. I knew him out Batavia way—years ago." He broke off. "So now I win, and you lose. A happy ending to a jolly little story, Trent! And you ought to be able to write about me some day. The Sky Raider—the first of them all!" He jerked the automatic in a gesture of command.

"What are you going to do with us?" Dick demanded. Mary, standing at his shoulder, had not spoken. She stared at Carmichael as if at some horror.

Carmichael's brows went up whimsically. "You mustn't expect me take you into my confidence completely," he said with an air of mock reproof. "However, I can say this. The three of us are going to take quite a little hop. I shall then say a heart-breaking farewell to you. Outside of a little discomfort, neither of you will be harmed."

"Carmichael!" Dick burst out. "Rand is in Starktown prison. He's going to die tonight unless you prevent it."

"By the simple process of dying in his place?" Carmichael asked dryly. "Trent, let's talk of something else! Self-sacrifice has always been a little nauseating to me. Suppose you two get into your plane."

Still covering them, Carmichael reached one hand toward the door of the express compartment. He unlocked it deftly and pulled out a bulky package.

"We'd better transfer this little matter to your plane also," he murmured. "Traveling is always expensive. It may come in handy."

The stolen money! The cynical gleam of relish in Carmichael's eyes as he uttered his flippancies!

For one instant Dick measured his man. Then with all his force he hurled himself forward. In the impetus Carmichael's gun went flying from his hand. Carmichael stooped as if carried off his feet by the suddenness of the attack. A hoarse, inarticulate sound burst from Dick's throat. At the same instant Carmichael's long arms thrust forward and gripped him about the knees.

Even as Dick went pitching head first into the rocks, he knew he had been beaten by another wrestler's trick "learned out in the East." The next moment a crashing sound seemed to split his head as he struck the rocks in his fall, and he knew nothing else.

Jaunty, to say the least, is the ostrich tip on a smart black velvet beret. Perched up on the right side, it seems to herald the revival of decidedly discreet feather trimming. The beret itself slants down to the left side.

business. I am superstitious, perhaps. But to me that stone is associated with tragedy."

"And you weren't hard enough pressed for money to discard your superstitions?" suggested the doctor.

"No," said the girl, and then she [illegible] with Slavic frankness. "My American friends have been quite generous."

"By the way," asked the doctor casually, "when did you last see Sewell?"

"I haven't seen him for months," said the girl.

The doctor shook his head sadly. "First let me ask you— [illegible] Russia [illegible] wealth, conserva[illegible] as a nation today. You learn [illegible]. You accept the fact [illegible]. You [illegible] Sewell [illegible] the stone [illegible] equally [illegible]. You [illegible] to recover [illegible]. You know [illegible] late [illegible]. Miss Karasova, the [illegible] exactly [illegible] to recover—or sell [illegible]."

But the doctor got no farther. He [illegible] from his chair as if [illegible] to communicate a significant message.

[illegible]

The Curtains of the Alcove Nearby Parted Suddenly

He stood near a curtained alcove. Now the curtains parted suddenly. A hand stole out, gripping a pistol. The hand swung down.

The doctor dropped to the floor.

When he awoke he was in what was obviously the attic of a country house. He was lying on a couch. His head pained him. He looked down at his hands and found them securely tied. He tried to rise, and then he discovered his ankles were encased in heavy rope. Some one had bound him expertly. He looked up.

Nina Karasova sat in a chair looking at him with smiling eyes.

"Ask no questions," she smiled, "and you will be spared all the lies that annoyed you so very much. No?"

"I suppose I had it coming to me," the doctor groaned. "I wanted adventure, and I've gotten it. I ought to be satisfied."

"We are very anxious to know —," began the girl, "exactly what you meant when you said, or intimated, you knew the truth. What is the truth?"

"Well," the doctor hesitated, "the fact is I was bluffing. If I'd known the truth, I wouldn't have come to see you at all."

"You suspected something. What is it?"

"I suspected," confessed the doctor, "that you knew a great deal more about the case than you said you did."

"And you see," she explained, "the gentleman who was with me thought you knew too much. So he hit you over the head with his revolver."

"When do I eat?" asked the doctor.

"Immediately. I can bring you some coffee, some eggs—"

"Poached, if you don't mind."

"Certainly. And possibly some cake. I think there's some cake in the house."

When she returned she freed his hands and sat down beside him, while he took a comforting sip of coffee.

"I like you," said the girl.

"Dear, dear," murmured the doctor, attacking the poached eggs. "I like you, too. These eggs are perfection."

"Why are you bothering with this case? It is not your duty."

"Only curiosity—and a taste for adventure," explained the doctor. "I've always wanted to solve a mystery, a murder mystery. I'm afraid it must remain one of my repressed desires."

"You could be very useful to us," the girl said after a pause.

"Eh?"

"Yes. You could be of great value."

"Just how?"

"We know who you are, and I think we can trust you. You don't know who we are, but I am going to tell you. And then you will help us."

"I can't promise that before I know the facts."

"You will be compelled to help us," said the girl, "if you value your life. Listen to me—"

Down at Headquarters Marx and the Major were closeted in conference. Marx was looking over his notes. The Major sat, facing him, with his hat clutched tightly in his hands. His eyes never left the detective's face.

"I'm asking your help to clear up various points in this case," Marx looked up.

"Sure," said the Major. "Glad to be of any help."

"You're sure Mrs. Edison wasn't in the room when Sewell was murdered?"

"Positive."

"So she came the next day. And hid in the alcove."

"Apparently."

"Why?"

The Major shook his head.

There was a knock at the door. Marx looked up. The doctor entered, smiled as he saw the Major, and waved cheerily to Marx.

"Am I interrupting?"

"Come in, come in," invited Marx. "You know the Major, and I told you his story. We were just going over it again."

"Well, I'll wait until you're done with the Major," said the doctor. "Then I think I have news for you."

"As a matter of fact," said the Major, "I don't think there's anything more I can do, except guess."

"There's one thing you can do," suggested the doctor.

"What?"

"Hand over the diamond."

"I haven't got it."

"I'm sorry to contradict you, Major, but you have. Shall I tell you where it is?"

"Where?"

"It's in a little pouch slung inside [illegible] belt around your waist."

[illegible] the Major scoffed. "What [illegible] are you trying to pull now?"

[illegible] go back to the [illegible] that Sewell [illegible] Russia. Your story is true in every particular. You held only [illegible] stock.

[illegible] saw an excellent chance of acquiring the stone [illegible]. You [illegible] occasion to watch both Sewell and the agent while they were [illegible] the safe. You [illegible] to get the combination. You took the stone.

You were on the verge of cleaning up a million dollars. It was easy. The customer was bound to secrecy. No one would ever know from her that you sold her the stone. And you felt no compunction about it—I'll give you your due—for the stone was stolen in any case and it was any man's property.

[illegible] then came the unexpected hitch. Sewell was murdered. And after the murder, the elderly lady who came from California grew frightened. She didn't want the stone.

"I'll come to the story. It struck me as I puzzled over the case that the young lady in red [illegible] fiance was still a vague shadowy outline in the scheme of things. So I went to call on her.

"Now this young lady is not quite the fool her fiance imagined. She's a very remarkable young lady, in fact. It always struck me as impossible that she should accept the loss of the diamond as calmly as the butler imagined. Fact is, she didn't." The doctor smiled drily. "She's not a young lady who permits herself to be cheated with equanimity.

"I must tell you more about the young lady. It's a strange [illegible]. The butler pictures her as a [illegible]less, abandoned creature. He was wrong. She did not love him, it is true.

"Now there are women who are naturally fitted for the roles of spies. Our young lady was one. After the revolution, she decided it would be fun to act as spy for the Reds.

"In her duty as a spy she was assigned to watch Sewell. It didn't matter very much that she was attracted to Sewell.

"Now along came the butler with the diamond. Our young lady was tempted. Fate seemed to play into her hands. She reported to her employers that Sewell had important business out of the country, and that she would follow him. Her idea was to get out of the country, and sell the diamond. She did not, as the butler imagined, give it to Sewell. But here is the curious part. Sewell got hold of it in some way. The girl had told him nothing of it and yet he had [illegible] it. Sewell was a pretty keen chap.

"Of course the girl told the butler the diamond had been stolen from Sewell. What else could she tell him? Arriving in New York she decided to report to Petrograd that Sewell had stolen the diamond from Russia, and that she would recover it at all costs. Here in New York she got hold of a fellow agent. She sent him to Sewell with the story that he knew Sewell had the stone, and he demanded a share. Now observe how thieves fall out.

"While the girl and the agent were plotting to get the stone out [illegible]

[illegible]

"We [illegible]

"Yes [illegible] And I [illegible] have to [illegible] this over [illegible] of [illegible]

"Give [illegible] the Major. But [illegible]

"But— [illegible] Sewell [illegible] appraised [illegible]

"And then Sewell [illegible] the crystal [illegible]

But why?"

"If we knew that we could solve this case," [illegible] the doctor.

* * *

Two weeks had passed since the newspapers first carried word of the murder of Oliver Sewell.

It was the doctor who [illegible] reconstructed the murder and what had happened subsequently.

And having [illegible] the doctor stressed these points.

Sewell or the Russian agent had substituted the crystal for the diamond.

The Russian agent had disappeared. Perhaps he was the one who killed Sewell. If he did, he would have the [illegible].

Mrs. Edison [illegible] to the police. Why?

There [illegible] the [illegible] we can't lay our hands on either Sewell or the agent [illegible] get Mrs. Edison [illegible] and see what we can get from her now."

Detectives were dispatched forthwith to bring Mrs. Edison to the mirrored room. An hour passed before they arrived with a highly indignant young woman.

"Now," Marx rubbed his hands for he faced a delicate [illegible], "let me tell you how you lied to us. Then you can tell us the truth. To begin with, you didn't come back here the night Sewell was murdered. You came [illegible]

[illegible] Perhaps I can [illegible] Sewell [illegible]

[illegible] Marx [illegible] know all about [illegible]

[illegible] Sewell [illegible] the Russian [illegible]

The [illegible] Marx [illegible] the doctor and then her gaze [illegible] to the ceiling.

"No."

"Mrs. Edison [illegible] you came back here to get hold of that diamond?"

"Yes," she said firmly, after a struggle.

"No," contradicted the doctor [illegible]. "You didn't come back for the diamond. You came to this apartment under orders."

The girl shrank back and looked at the doctor with frightened eyes.

When [illegible] the doctor [illegible].

"And I [illegible] tell you."

The doctor looked at Marx.

- 1 green pepper
- Cracker crumbs
- 1 pound spaghetti
- 1 c. grated cheese
- 2 large tbsps. bacon fat or olive oil
- 1 egg
- 1 pound hamburg steak
- 1 can tomatoes

Boil the spaghetti 20 minutes in boiling salted water and drain. Arrange a layer in the bottom of a large casserole with a layer of grated cheese, a layer of tomato sauce repeating until you use up all the ingredients. Put in a hot oven, covered to keep hot.

Saute ½ pound of mushrooms and 1 green pepper cut in ½ inch bits in 3 tbsps. olive oil until tender. Mould the spaghetti on the large platter, arrange the meat balls on top of the mold and pour the mushrooms, green pepper and olive oil over all. The mushrooms and last green pepper can be omitted if you wish.

MERELY MARGY

"ACTUALLY, my dear, I was ALL SHOT and shattered at this point because I couldn't IMAGine what I'd DONE to give BASil the IDEA I was OFF him or something, but I mean I was THOroughly conVINCED he'd conCEIVED some such quaint NOtion from the peCULiar way he was ACting all of a sudden, my dear, because I mean he seemed to have conceived the FIRM idea he BORED me to TEARS or something, do you know what I mean? F'r instance, he sort of began being terribly DIStant and all, and being the SHY type, I was PRACticably certain he'd developed the imPRESH that he was NURturing a HOPEless PASsion in his manly bosom on account of the inDIF'rent way I was ACting, sort of, but I mean what could I DO, my dear, because I certainly wasn't going to purSUE the bozo and naIVEly TELL him I aDORED him with a PASsion! But what assASSinated me was the kind of OBvious way he began aVOIDing me, which was ABs'lute PROOF he was inFATuated with me because I mean that's the way ALL men of the mysTERious and terribly SHY type ACT, my dear, when they're MAD about you and think you don't reCIProcate or something, do you know what I mean. GEE, I was SIMply LIVid about the situation, my dear, because HALF the time I was sitting HEAVily by mySELF vaguely TWIDdling my THUMBS and FRANtically picturing BASil SEcretly YEARNing to SEIZE me madly in his ARMS, but conVINCED I couldn't CARE for him or something! THE BAER FACTS -:- By 'BUGS' BAER

THE Standard Oil, than whom there is no sassier, continues its influential scrimmage for proxies.

Papa John D. asked Col. Stewart to resign from his chain store system of filling stations last year. The colonel's negative is still thundering up the valleys and rolling back from the hills.

Junior John D. chose up sides with his daddy and the war of the proxies was on.

Out of deference to Smith and Hoover, the colonel and John waited until the presidential election was over before they started a REAL contest.

A proxy is a man who represents you when you are unpresentable. Proxies got famous in the Civil War. If you wanted to stay home and cheer you could hire a proxy to go to war for you for the courageous sum of $300.

There is a man in New York State who still draws a Civil War pension because his proxy was shot while hastily making historic footprints away from the Battle of Bull Run.

To explain it better, you leap up one flight of economic steps and buy yourself a boyish-form suit with two pairs of pants.

Wishing to get full value out of your purchase, you wear the outfit as far as possible and hire a proxy to wear the extra pair of pants.

When Col. Stewart refused to subtract his dots from the dotted line it established a feeling of hostility that was almost as bad as a peace conference.

While the two Rockefellers were nodding their heads in perfect time, like two berries on one stem, the colonel went into a huddle with his proxies.

John D., Senior, hopped to Florida to play golf with a reliable proxy. Col. Stewart rushed out to Indiana to sing Paul Dresser's beautiful ballad, "Oh, the Banks of the Wabash Have Been Merged."

The younger John left for Egypt on an archeological stampede. He was last seen digging around the Rameses parking spaces in the hopes of digging up an ancient dynasty of proxies.

Although Col. Stewart marches up his proxies by squads, companies and regiments, we would hate to be the proxy who has to run the gauntlet of the consolidated Rockefellers when call money is singing in the twilight.

We knew his father.

witness, and maybe as an accomplice to this murder, and all your friends won't be able to get you off."

"Very well," she said. "I'll tell you everything. I have lied to you. That night that Sewell met my husband and myself at the night club, Sewell had agreed, just as I said, to go with me to Europe. He was going to dispose of the diamond there. I knew some very wealthy Americans living in Paris who would have bought it from him.

"As we were coming back in the taxi, Sewell said he had a strange fear of his life. He told me something of a Russian agent who knew of the stone, and who would kill him if he knew he had it."

"Ah!" interrupted Marx. "So Sewell did have it. Our friend, the Major, copped a crystal. Sewell himself stole the stone. Never mind, Mrs. Edison, go ahead."

"Sewell said that no matter where we went, we would be followed by this Russian, who would kill him if he couldn't get hold of the stone.

"So he said he'd decided on a plan. It was a very strange plan, but I agreed to it, because—because I loved him, and I trusted him.

"We were to sail the next day at noon. Sewell's idea was throw the Russian off the track completely, and this is what he intended:

"I was to come up to the apartment at ten in the morning. We were to meet. Sewell was to go down to the boat, where he was sailing under an assumed name. I would remain, and call up the police, and say that I'd visited Sewell and found him dead."

The girl paused.

"Go ahead," barked Marx.

"I'd found him dead," she repeated, "and I was to give the alarm. Then, after the police got through questioning me, I was to join him on the boat."

Marx shook his head.

"Of all the—"

"Sewell said that once the Russian believed him dead, he'd be safe."

"But what about the body?"

"He'd arranged for that. I was to say I'd found him lying here, and then as I turned to give the alarm, the body had disappeared, presumably dragged away by the murderer. There was this secret passage to the adjoining apartment. He was sure the police would find that. They'd have a mystery on their hands. And the Russian would believe Sewell was out of the way."

"And you fell for it?"

"I couldn't help it. It seemed to fit in every way. His wife would think him dead. We could be married in Europe. I had some money. Selling the diamond would make us rich. We could be happy together."

"And Sewell was murdered before he could fake being murdered," Marx tried to sum up the weird story.

"Yes."

"And then?" prompted the doctor.

"I tried to sail, anyway, but—your detectives stopped me, and I've just been through Hell ever since. I can't understand it. I can't understand it."

"Did Sewell ever mention Major Preston as a likely source of danger?" demanded the doctor.

"Yes," said the girl. "But he was mainly scared of this Russian agent. He did mention the Major. He said the Major didn't like him."

The doctor rose.

"I don't think we need to trouble you any more, Mrs. Edison. You've told us all we wanted to know. By the way, what was the boat you were to sail on?"

"The Berengaria."

"And under what name?"

"Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Slater."

"Thank you. I don't think we'll be needing you again, Mrs. Edison. Thank you very much."

The girl rose, and without further word, made her exit. The doctor took up the telephone and got the Cunard Line.

"Could you tell me if a Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Slater sailed on the Berengaria exactly two weeks ago?"

The doctor held the phone. Marx looked at him wonderingly.

"Mr. Slater sailed," the doctor repeated. "Mrs. Slater didn't. Thank you."

The doctor wheeled about.

"Mr. Slater sailed yesterday," he amended. "When the boat returned. He couldn't make it on its previous trip."

GRAND JURORS IN ALL-NIGHT VIGIL

These men work night and day to make city safe.

WASHINGTON—Two members of the Grand Jury, William Hem and Andy Haw, last night made a secret investigation of the Peeping Tom charges that have been circulated against Congressman Frisby since he started his Day and Night Non-Stop Endurance Walk.

After dark they climbed the fire escape outside the apartment of Miss Gertie Abercrombie, complaining witness, to study the various angles of the case.

A complication arose when Miss Abercrombie made a second complaint to the police, who found the grand jurors making their survey.

The trio, after serenading Miss Abercrombie, was surprised to discover it was a quartette. And the fourth man turned out to be none other than Congressman Frisby, who was obviously startled. "Where am I?" he asked, and went on to explain that he must have been walking in his sleep.

A CHILD'S COUGH EASY TO STOP THE DOCTORS DECLARE

But It Is Hard to Find a Remedy That Children Like to Take

PARENTS SHOULD REMEMBER THIS

Any harmless cough remedy soon stops the coughs and colds of children because their little bodies throw off such troubles easily, provided they are not delicate and sickly.

But where am I to get something children will like to take is a big question. Cod Liver Oil is nasty and you must take it such a long time.

Here is the answer of doctors who know and love children: "Give the child 'Linonine,' a nice-tasting, creamy white Flaxseed, Eucalyptus, etc., mixture, far better than Cod Liver Oil and quicker, too. The kiddies love it and it is as harmless and effective as can be.

Thousands of modern mothers keep a bottle always at hand for coughs, colds and to build up and strengthen the children this time of year. A cough is a nasty, dangerous thing for children. Well-stocked druggists have Linonine, made by the nationally known Kerr Chemical Co., 50c or $1.00 sizes.

BARSUKOFF IN FIRST PROGRAM FOR BOSTON

By MOSES SMITH

Sergei Barsukoff played a program of piano pieces before a good-sized audience at Steinert Hall. Making his first appearance in this city, he was well received by his listeners, and he played several extra numbers.

His program, which varied slightly from that originally announced, began with a Bach Sarabande, two pieces by Brahms, and the Weber-Tausig "Invitation to the Dance." The pianist's own "Poeme Sonore," nicely developed from a minimum of musical substance, was followed by two numbers from Scriabin and the Prokofieff "March." This last was nicely played, and was repeated in response to enthusiastic applause.

Barsukoff displayed a brilliant though unorthodox technique, commendable elasticity in rhythm, and, in general, an intellectual approach to his music. His tone is [illegible] constantly percussive, suggestive of Rachmaninoff. The art of singing a melody he has still to acquire; his present tendency is to overemphasize. In his vigorous pedalling the pianist seems to have taken a poor leaf out of Paderewski's book.

Music which demanded tonal clarity, precise exposition of little phrases, was best served at his hands. The Godowsky transcription of Strauss' "Artist's Life" Waltz was brilliantly played, but without sufficient contrast in color and mood. The Scriabin numbers—an Etude and an Impromptu—were very well played.

NOBODY'S IMMUNE

Have you all of your own teeth?

Unless you take preventive measures now, the day is coming when you may know, to your sorrow, that the true meaning of the phrase "artificial denture" is often the extravagant price of self-neglect—false teeth. Here's the reason and the way to help safeguard health against the coming of this day.

Teeth are only as healthy as the gums. And gums, undernourished and under-exercised, soon surrender to dread diseases that ravage health and often destroy teeth. To prevent this, avail yourself of the best care that modern dentistry offers. Place yourself in the hands of your dentist at least twice a year. And brush your gums when you brush your teeth, every morning and night.

But for this purpose—use Forhan's for the Gums—the dentifrice designed to help firm gums and keep them sound, thus protecting them from the attack of disease.

Use Forhan's regularly. You'll be delighted with the way it makes your gums look and feel. In addition, you'll notice that it effectively and safely cleans teeth and helps to protect them from decay. Get a tube of Forhan's—today!

MUSICAL STAR TO MAKE FILM FOR WARNERS

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1929, Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 15—Broadway at the height of its jazz season never had more noises emanating from stray theatrical offices than burst forth each day from Tin Pan Alley at Warners studio. Violin obligatos, Ethel Waters singing soft negro melodies, Sophie Tucker's coon shouting and all the rest of the great and near-great, try their numbers in the white building known as Tin Pan Alley, before they are ready for final screening.

Within two weeks Ann Pennington's dimpled knees will be in step with the other microphone stars. Ann is coming to Hollywood to star in a musical comedy for Warner Brothers. I should like to tell you the name of the certain play in which she will sing and dance but Darryl Zanuck turned pale at the idea. "Too many deals," quoth he, "have been ruined by just such an item."

But Ann has signed a contract with Warners and she will soon be here to take her place in Tin Pan Alley and will tell the name of her first picture later.

I THOUGHT I could not be hearing correctly when Harry Cohn told me he was going to start "Redemption," Tolstoy's play, next week for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer announced their intention of producing the same play some weeks ago. I did hear correctly and Cohn insists I printed his story some time ago. Maybe so. The interesting fact remains, both companies are going to produce Tolstoy's play. Fox and the Old Metro company did the same thing with "Romeo and Juliet" and also Fox and Goldwyn with "Carmen."

However, that was before pictures were such expensive, elaborate affairs. Renee Adoree will play opposite Gilbert in the M. G. M. version and Cohn isn't saying who is in his cast, although I am told on reliable authority that Estelle Taylor Dempsey has been made an offer to play the woman's part for Columbia in "Redemption."

* * *

TOO bad Ruth Chatterton hasn't an astral body. She would profit by it and profit well. She is wanted in so many places these days since "The Doctor's Secret" that she is dizzy trying to be in two places at once. It can't be done. She will not finish "Madame X" in time to play in "The Studio Murder Mystery," so Florence Eldridge, stage actress, who also throws a mean voice and knows how to talk, will take the place Miss Chatterton was to have had. Miss Eldridge will probably remain at Paramount for other pictures.

I AM sorry that Alberto Valentino has decided to break into the movies. Of course, this is merely a personal opinion and, perhaps, I am unfair to make such a statement, but our memories of Rudy Valentino are so sweet, and his ability as an actor so great, that it seems heartbreaking that there is to be an imitator.

* * *

BLANCHE SWEET'S never-to-be-forgotten success on the screen in "Anna Christie" and Pauline Lord's performance on the stage, in the same character, are to have a chance for duplication for "Anna Christie" returns as a talkie. A play with as much to it as "Anna Christie" could not very well help being resurrected. Rumor says that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer outbid First National and won the prize. First National, I am told, was going after it strong. All's fair in love and war and the movie negotiations. Wonder who will play Anna in the talkie?

* * *

ONE by one the Mack Sennett stars leave him. Johnny Burke, it is rumored, is negotiating with one of the well-known companies. Sally Eilers and Matty Kemp have terminated their contracts with him. I had thought that Sennett might have decided not to make any more pictures but now we hear that Harry Gribbon has just signed a new two-year contract with Sennett to star in Mack Sennett photophone productions. This in plain language, means talkies. Gribbon will take up this contract as soon as he finishes one picture for Warner Brothers.

* * *

WE never used to get excited over movie contracts. It was all in a day's game but since the talkies have put all the screen stars on their mettle we are now supposed to look awed every time one of these "fillum" favorites puts his John Hancock on a piece of paper. At least six people have told me that Billie Dove has signed a new contract with First National to make all talkies. That goes without saying. Warners aren't signing any stars who do not talk. That means her next, "Careers," will be a talkie. Thelma Todd, by the bye, will have an important part in this opera.

* * *

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Mrs. Jack Warner taking a drive in the new Rolls Royce presented to her by her boy friend, Jack, youngest of the Warners. Bess Meredyth cutting a birthday cake with sixteen candles at the Hotel Roosevelt. Dorothy Sebastian, Clarence Brown and Sylvia Thalberg, congratulating her on being so young and so bright. Three blonde beauties lunching at one table at the Montmartre, namely Marion Davies, Eileen Percy Busch and Kathryn Carver Menjou. Gwen Lee arriving an hour late at her own luncheon. A pretty flapper holding up traffic on Hollywood boulevard while she reads a play. Colleen Moore inviting a group of her friends to a house warming next month. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Carry Out Two Cripples at Fire

Portland, Me., Feb. 15—Martha Serunian, four, confined to bed with a broken leg, was carried from the third floor of the apartment house at 173 Oxford st. by James Kerkunian, while Mrs. Marion Arvanginan, also recovering from a broken leg, was brought down 1, safely by John Arvangiran and Anthony Serunian when the men discovered fire in the house.

Boston Dressing Up

There Is a Psychological Uplift in Careful Attention to One's Attire

Boston is dressing up. You see it not alone at the opera, but in the other playhouses; at the movies, in hotel lobbies, in the streets. There is something exhilarating in the sight of a well-dressed theater audience; the men in the correct worsted and linen of custom; the women in the attractive evening modes of the moment.

We cannot all dress up for festive occasions. In these days it is no mark of social stigma to wear daytime clothes at evening functions. When we have the formal clothes, however, and when we take the small trouble of changing to them for the night's frolic or festivity, we heighten our own pleasure and that of those who surround us. There goes with appropriate clothes a consciousness of being "in the picture"; a pleasing tingle in the thought that "I belong. I am as good as anyone here." Slightly foolish, perhaps, but human.

In our daytime affairs, too, we can get a psychological boost from the clothes that we wear. Oftentimes the small matter of a bright new necktie changes a man's attitude from one of defeatism to self-assurance; from discouragement to determination. A chic little hat or a smart pair of shoes will transform an obscure, timid lass into a self-possessed young lady fully conscious of her attractions and filled with the joy of life. Little things, but important.

For Public Safety

Bills to Decrease Narcotic Importations Would Cut Crime; Congress Should Pass Them Now

Congress was confronted by a series of shocking facts when Representative Fish pleaded for the passage of his bills to decrease the importation of drugs into this country. He declared that the statistics showed crime costs the United States ten billions of dollars a year, and that fifty per cent of that amount is directly due to drug addiction.

Representative Stobbs, of Massachusetts, asserted that ninety per cent of all habitual criminals are habitual drug users. Col. L. G. Nott, chief of the Federal Narcotic Bureau, revealed that one shipment of two tons of opium and 61,600 ounces of morphine was smuggled into America and distributed to dealers and addicts.

No denial was made of these frightful facts, and they are only a few of the facts in the vast conspiracy to enslave the nation through drugs. The judiciary sub-committee of the House of Representatives did not question them. Police, welfare agencies and court officials generally concede them to be true.

Now, what is Congress going to do about it? The opportunity is offered to reduce the crime bill of the country to half its present terrific proportions, to reduce the number of habitual criminals to one-tenth of the present number, to minimize murder, robbery and allied crimes.

What Congress should do is to enact the Fish drug bills without delay. One bill authorizes the Government to employ narcotic agents abroad to detect attempts to smuggle drugs.

The other provides for a fund to be paid informers. This is what the Treasury Department does to detect ordinary customs violations, and drug smuggling is the most dangerous form of smuggling.

The bills should be passed before the present Congress adjourns, as a precaution for public safety.

Meat for Thinkers

Vegetables Alone Won't Do

A well-known chain of restaurants will give up the theory that meat isn't good for you.

Meat prohibition, like other kinds of prohibition, doesn't work well. In addition to which, meat is necessary to those that use their brains. Vegetables will do for those that only use their muscles.

When the Japanese started to fight Russia, most SUCCESSFULLY, one of the first things they did was to change soldiers from a rice to a meat diet. The Japanese could not walk fast enough or fight hard enough with all that rice inside of them.

You know that meat-eating animals live on vegetable-eating animals. So, eat meat and, as our slang has it, "don't let anybody tell you different," except your doctor.

Feminine Drivers

After a survey of automobile records, Dr. Viteles, of the University of Pennsylvania, reports that women drivers become involved in accidents three times as readily as men. At first glance, that statement appears a strong indictment against the ability of women to operate automobiles, but deeper study of the report proves otherwise.

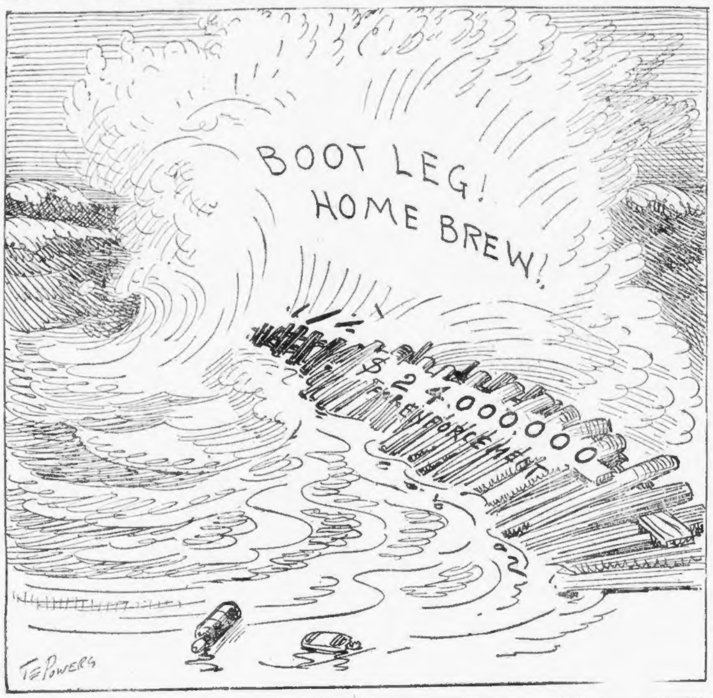
Women become involved in accidents, it is explained, because they are overcautious. They are struck far more frequently than they strike other cars. They bear the brunt of masculine recklessness. Another point for feminine motorists is that they act so quickly at the critical moment in accidents that far less damage is done than when cars driven by men collide. In other words, women are more cautious in driving, quicker-witted and capable of protecting themselves and their passengers. It would seem that the case against the woman driver must be thrown out of court!

Cost of a Career

A boy who might have been a motion picture actor was awarded $45,000 by a Brooklyn jury for injuries that disabled him permanently. What percentage of the amount represented the lad's lost ambition and what part was thrown in for the broken bones would be interesting to learn.

Yet, even though Joseph Kashioff could scarcely have taken Rudolph Valentino's place on the screen, as he hoped to, it is worth noting that the jury considered his ambition in fixing the judgment. Ambition is often man's greatest asset in life and castles of dreams may prove valuable reality in the right mental setting. The loss of hope, the defeat of desire, the annihilation of ambition well may be a greater misfortune than the crippling of the body.

All Faw Down and Go Boom -:- By T. E. Powers



Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

FUNNY, how women who fought and wailed for "freedom from the tyrant man," will calmly permit a little French hairdresser to put such an atrocity over on them, as the "BUN!"

To one who spent three-quarters of her girlhood hunting for slipping hairpins, curling, waving, brushing and "doing up" a mass of superfluous back hair, it is appalling to see young girls deliberately going back to the horrors of the Corset Age.

We who once proudly boasted that we could "sit on" our hair, were a long, long time succumbing to the bob. We hugged our sorrows and our headaches to us, and refused to be shorn until the last horn blew.

Never shall we forget the day we closed our eyes and listened, shuddering and shivering to the clip-clip of the shears, as our treasured Crowning Glory fell to the floor in quantities sufficient to make a good-sized mattress.

But now that we have known the joy, the comfort, the freedomn and the beauty of the BOB and have reveled in the coolness and CLEANLINESS of healthy, shining hair, we can only contemplate with horror the return to self-imposed slavery.

We remember the long, hot summer days, when we went around with tired, sticky, perspiring heads under the weight of rolls, plaits, puffs and rats. We remember all the little "dee-vices" and instruments of torture—the pads, hairnets, hatpins and side-combs—invented to make our burden more terrible.

We remember all the sacred rites and hard labor of a shampoo; the Sunday afternoons spent with our heads hanging out of the window, courting apoplexy; the pains in the backs of our necks; the torture of swimming and diving under our handicap; the embarrassment of straggling locks after a game of golf or a canter in the park; our beaded foreheads on warm nights! Oh, Suffering Sutherland Sisters! WHAT we remember!

And we look in astonishment at the girls who are letting their hair grow out, and wonder what in Heaven's name they SEE in that unsightly little knob at the back of their necks, to compensate them for the sacrifice of their becoming, youthifying bobs.

The long-haired girl of the pre-bob days, at least had some compensations for her pains in the graceful headdresses of her time. Only charwomen and very old ladies with no vanity left wore a BUN at the back of the neck!

But the modern girl appears to be deliberately trying to make herself look funny and old and plain. Just for a fad! Or because "Paris has decreed it!"

Aren't women funny! All their lives are spent in praying for rain—and then wishing it would clear off; kicking for something—and then wishing they hadn't GOT it!

Give us back our wild, free locks! Off with the "bun!" On with the shears! Delilah was right!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

HOW can I tell that a brighter day is certain to greet me soon? Why, never a year that has passed away but has brought me its joy of June! Never a bough by November stripped left leafless and bare and brown, but grew green again when the gay spring tripped back to earth with her leafy crown. Faith may dwindle sometimes to a candle-gleam, but through fury of winds and gale it shows clear as the north star's steadfast beam that never can change or fail. So, though the prospect is drear and bleak and the time of the rose seems far, my dreams still harbor the hope I seek and mock at the calendar.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"HUMAN nature doesn't change" you've heard that often.

And probably, like most of us, you've thought of human nature as something we receive at birth, just as we receive our skeletons and internal organs—infant size, to be sure, but all ready to be wound up and set going.

"Johnny takes after his father's side of the family," you've heard that, too—the assumption being that Johnny arrived with a fell set of cussed impulses and instincts all patterned after the Joneses. Such being the case, it was futile to buck heredity. And what a lovely weapon it put in mama's hand every time Johnny pulled a tantrum.

Human nature didn't—couldn't—change. Human nature was a tangible quality which was fixed, and there was nothing we could do about it. You might teach a child to use his hanky or raise his hat, but his essential nature was beyond your manipulation. That was the way we've regarded human nature since Eve first bit into that apple. But at last we're discarding that theory.

Come now wise men who say that human nature not only changes, but does nothing but! And claim that it's all poppycock to blame Johnny's disposition on dad's side of the family, for it's a sheer impossibility for Johnny to get anything at birth from any human being save his seven or eight pounds of baby flesh.

In other words, these gentlemen claim that human nature is MADE, not transmitted, and that we inherit nothing save a few crude brute reactions—that all our HUMAN nature is shaped by training and environment AFTER birth. Pre-natal influence.

"Pooh!" snort the scientists; "there's no such thing! A mother may influence a child's body through her own blood stream, but she cannot possibly influence its character, for it hasn't even the making of character until it is born."

This theory is called BEHAVIORISM, and Dr. Watson is its foremost exponent. But many other psychologists and biologists are commending it.

"I BELIEVE THAT ALL HUMAN BEHAVIOR HIGHER THAN THAT OF A LOW MONKEY IS MADE, NOT BORN," says Dr. Dorsey in his new book, "Hows and Whys of Human Behavior."

Does that theory startle you? It shouldn't. It's a very hopeful theory, quite the most hopeful theory we've ever had about human behavior. If it's true it really gives the child a fair start. But, of course, it robs papas and mamas of a lot of useful alibis.

Hitherto if Bobby and Bessie turned out to be young savages mama could blame it on God or the relatives. Now she'll have to face the most uncomfortable fact that she created those young savages through her own bad temper, laziness, unfairness and general stupidity.

According to the Behavioris's Bobby and Bessie did not need to be savages. They had all the makings of civilized beings, like other normal children. But they needed proper training and environment to develop those quality. And if they don't develop, mother and dad are to blame.

Which is certainly going to be a sad blow to a lot of peevish progenitors.

WHAT YOU GIVE AWAY

By LUCY LOWELL

SOME things we never have unless we give them away. Chief of these is love.

Odd when you consider how dependent love is on being given away. Its very existence depends upon this, for the existence of love is expression, and there can be no expression without an object.

One might hold within himself the very heights and depths of love and yet be utterly barren of love without someone to lavish his love upon. Someone—not something—for love must be received with a certain amount of understanding, even though it be only the dumb, loyal understanding of a dog.

This is why those who attempt to love things—wealth, power, place—never know love; emotion goes out and returns to them void—for the spark of life is not in it.

Kindness is another of those things which must be given to be enjoyed. Kindness, to be sure, is kin to love, for one does not exist without the other, though the love which is in kindness may be more of good-will, a general affection for humanity at large.

"Love that is hoarded moulds at last,
Until we know some day,
The only thing we ever have,
Is what we give away.

And kindness that is never used,
But hidden all alone,
Will slowly harden till it is
As hard as any stone."

I dot not know who is the author of these verses, but they seem very beautiful to me. They hold an entire philosophy of life—and a radiant one.

PARIS, Feb. 15—Most of us do some "heavy hollering" about the annoyance of tipping in France. As a matter of fact it is nice clean fun if you are stocked up with small change. Compared to American tipping, it is midget stuff. A franc (four cents) tip is equivalent to a quarter tip at home and received with better grace.

All hotels exact a 10 per cent of the bill tribute, but it doesn't mean anything. You must tip extra when you depart. Servants line up outside the door with palms outstretched, and it takes a braver man than Gungha Din to run the gauntlet.

In cafes, if the pourbois is not considered ample by the waiter he leaves it at your plate as a silent gesture of contempt and retreats to a far away corner for a good cry. He expects his 10 per cent, as does the wine man. Hotel clerks and often the manager, too, have a sad-eyed look if you neglect them.

Package boys, in reality gray-haired old men, are paid no salaries and consequently if you are out when they make deliveries they return for the tip. A franc is all they expect from an American. From a native 50 centimes or even a sou suffices.

In ordering a round of drinks at a bar, it is customary to leave a franc for the bartender. Few receive salaries. Fitters in the dressmaking parlors expect their five or ten franc gift. And never, never forget the concierge. If you do, you will probably not get back in the hotel again.

The concierge wears the uniform of servitude but he is a big shot. In many instances he is a heavy share holder. It is tres difficile to digest the French idea about tipping. Here it hasn't the slightly degrading stigma attached to it in America. They regard it as much their due as the pay envelope at home.

In a barber shop or hair dressing parlor, the attendant who serves walks with you to the cashier's cage. He makes out the check and waits at your side until you hand him his tip. He is not at all abashed by what seems to many bland impertinence. It is the way he was brought up.

ONE of the most amusing things I have seen in Paris so far is a man's bicycle with a seat of delicate pink plush. Mike Arlen called it the Flossy Fanny.

THE most famous cocktail place in the world is a few steps from the rue Cambon entrance of the Ritz. The charm is in its intimacy. It occupies the space of an ordinary hotel room, and 10 minutes after it opens, at noon, and in the late afternoon it is so densely packed no one can get in or out. A gentleman may not enter alone. He must escort a lady. It is pratronized chiefly by the loose-living divorce set, with a sprinkling of Greek and Argentine gigolos. More cocktails are downed here in a day than in all the other American bars combined, and among those glorifying illustrious namesakes are: The Mistinguett, The Lindbergh and The Ambassador Herrick. The manager of the cocktail room is Frank Maier, whose autograph book contains the most celebrated roster I ever saw, and who is a milionaire.

THE "smart" Parisienne is largely a myth and exists almost solely among the demi-monde. Few representative French women bear any resemblance whatever to the Irene Bordoni-ish types in La Vie Parisienne. Fine ladies in France dress in black, because it is inconspicuous, economical and can be "matched." It is convenient for the long and deep periods of mourning. The gentlewoman is more interested in money in the bank than the latest creations of Chanel or Cheruit.

THE typical French housewife rarely wears a hat, save for state affairs. On every street she is seen bare-headed, hunched up and shivering in a woolen shoulder-throw. And one rarely sees a thin middle-aged woman here.

MY wife went prowling among the antique shops on Avenue Victor Hugo today. In one she ran across Ralph Barton, the artist. "Why are you looking for antiques?" he archly inquired. "I thought your husband came over with you." And she can scarcely wait until she gets home to blab that one.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

NATIONAL FEDERATION OF POSTOFFICE MOTOR VEHICLE EMPLOYEES—Local No. 6.

February 11, 1929.

Editor of the Boston Evening American:

The article appearing in your paper on the editorial page of February 6, entitled "Mail Must Go Through," needs some correction if we are going to stick close to the truth, which the Hearst publications claim they do.

Let us start with the assertion that "Serious menace of life and limb confronts the average citizen." Five hundred trucks leave the postoffice garage during the 24 hours' service. In eight years not a fatality has occurred to a pedestrian where a mail truck was involved and the driver of same was found guilty of negligence and recklessness.

We do not know where these warnings come from about having no special privileges, but if the writer will read the traffic rules he will find there are some privileges allowed mail trucks but are seldom taken advantage of.

Now, "A huge mail truck bearing down on a group of street car patrons about to board a car at the rate of 40 miles an hour" must have existed in the mind of the writer, for these huge trucks are governed down to 15 and some to 20 miles an hour. It would be hardly possible for a truck to gain enough momentum the way traffic is on Boylston st. and in the short space to be traveled between Clarendon st. and Arlington st., even if they were governed to a higher rate of speed.

The owner of all these "noise makers" is Uncle Sam, and each truck is numbered on the front, back and each side in gold letters so that in case any more of these reckless drivers cross your path their numbers may be used in lieu of registration plates to identify the guilty party.

We do not know who coined the phrase, "Mails Must Go Through," but anyway it served as a good headline for your article, and how much better we would feel toward the Boston American and especially the editorial column, which I always thought rang true, if you had given us a boost instead of an article that condemns us to a major degree before the eyes of the public and the readers of your paper.

In fairness to the many men employed in this important duty of moving the mail, we desire you to give this letter the space your article received February 6, 1929.

With kindest regards and we hope this letter will arrive at its destination more promptly than the one referred to in your article.

This letter mailed at 11 a. m. February 11, 1929, on Summer st.

Yours truly,
ROBERT J. TULLY, Rec. Secretary.
RICHARD SCHOENFELD, President.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Death presses heavily on that man, who, being but too well known to others, dies in ignorance of himself. —Seneca.

A cheerful look makes a dish a feast. —Herbert.

The country life is to be preferred, for there we see the works of God; but in cities, little else but the works of men; and the one makes a better subject for our contemplation than the other. —Penn.

It is the first of all problems for a man to find out what kind of work he is to do in this universe. —Carlyle.
